EDINBURGH AND LEITH,

WITH THEIR ENVIRONS.

EDINBURGH, capital City of Scotland, Royal and Parliamentary Burgh, seat of the College of Justice, the University of Edinburgh and the Assemblies of the Church of Scotland and Free Church, also of the Episcopal and Roman Catholic dioceses of Edinburgh, is situated about two miles south of the Firth of Forth and from Leith, which forms its port. It lies in lat. 55 deg. 57 m. 23 sec. N., and longitude 3 deg. 10 min. 30 sec. W.; distant from London 392 miles (by rail 427), 91 from Carlisle (110 by rail), 55 from Berwick-upon-Tweed (57½ by rail), nearly 44 from Glasgow (47½ by rail), 43 from Dundee (by rail 66), 109 from Aberdeen, 241 from Inverness, by Aberdeen, and 191 from Inverness by Perth. It is grouped round the abrupt mass of rock to the south of what was originally the North Loch and on which stands the old castle, the old Gaelic name being Dunedin. Down the shoulder of this hill, by a steep and winding street, runs the "Old Town," ending beyond the Canongate in the park surrounding Holyrood palace, while round this venerable centre, which has a lower hill on either side, are grouped the New Town to the north, Calton hill on the north-east, the Queen's park backed by Salisbury Craigs to the east, and behind the hill on which Heriot's hospital stands Lauriston and The Meadows lie to the south, while the district round Dean Bridge, Water of Leith and the railways lies to the west. The railways into the city are the Caledonian, connected with England at Carlisle (west coast route), and the North British viâ Berwick (east coast route). By sea it is reached through its port of Leith.

HISTORY.

A great fire in 1532 and the attack on the city by the Earl of Hertford in 1544 destroyed nearly all the original buildings except the three prominent edifices which mark the western, centre and eastern points of the old town, viz.: the Castle, St. Giles' church and Holyrood, and which may be said to be the only public buildings dating prior to 1542; the Parliament House having been erected as late as 1639. The lower end of the High street is the Burgh of the Canongate, or town belonging to the Augustine Canons of the Monastery of the Holy Rood, on the site of which was built the palace. About 1020 the town became a residence for the Scottish kings, Margaret the wife of Malcolm Ceanmore dying in the castle in 1093 and early in the 12th century David I. made it his principal seat of government, founding in 1128 the Monastery of the Holy Rood, where he located a body of Augustine monks: towards the end of this century William the Lion made it a Royal burgh and a place of mintage; but 8th December, 1174, this monarch, as the price of his liberty, surrendered it by the treaty of Falaise to Henry II. King of England, by whom it was retained till 1189. In the year 1214 a parliament first assembled here, in the reign of Alexander II. In 1239 a general council of the Scottish Church met here; and during the reign of Alexander III. it became the royal residence and the depository of the records and regalia of the kingdom. In 1291 the town and castle were surrendered to King Edward I.; but were speedily regained by the Scots, who held them until the fatal battle of Dunbar, in 1294, enabled Edward to recapture them. The castle continued in the possession of the English until 1312, when it once more reverted to Scotland. In 1326, the fourteenth parliament of Bruce met in Holyrood Abbey; and the next year was memorable for the admission of the borough representatives among those of the other estates and for the confirmation of the treaty of Northampton, by which the independence of Scotland was acknowledged by Edward III. About 1327 Robert I. granted a charter to the inhabitants of Edinburgh, and placed under their dominion the town of Leith, "with its harbour and mills," and in 1371 Robert II. made it the capital. During the reign of Edward III. the castle twice changed hands; in 1385 the English under Richard II. burnt and plundered the abbey, and in 1400 Henry IV. while taking the town spared the abbey, in consideration of kindness shown to his father in 1381: the Scots about 1406 regained the possession of Edinburgh and the city continued to increase in importance, until it became the residence of the chief functionaries of the government, after the murder of James I. in 1436-7, and was the recognized metropolis of the kingdom. Edinburgh now rapidly increased in population; and as it was hemmed in by walls, houses of great height were erected, and very close together. At this period the street was formed called the Cowgate, parallel to the main street on the south, at the bottom of the ridge, now one of the poorest and most narrow streets in the Old Town. About the middle of the 15th century Edinburgh was encircled by walls, at the instigation of James II., the marriage of which monarch with Mary Gueldres, and her coronation, were celebrated with great pomp in 1449 in the Abbey of Holyrood, which abbey became the tomb of the king eleven years afterwards. The turbulent reign of James III. succeeded, during which the sites of the markets were determined, the provost made sheriff of the town, and various municipal privileges granted to the inhabitants. In token of the bravery and loyalty of the inhabitants, a banner was also given to them, to be displayed "in defence of their king, their country and their own rights." This flag, from its colour, received the name of the "blue blanket," and remains in the custody of the convener of the trades, at whose appearance therewith, says tradition, not only the artificers of Edinburgh, but those of the whole kingdom, are to repair to it, and fight under the convener. On all great pageants, this memorial of the loyalty of Edinburgh is ostentatiously displayed. In 1508 the thickly-wooded lands of the "Borough Moor" were cleared of their trees, in virtue of powers granted by the king; and, in order to obtain purchasers for the timber, the magistrates enacted that "whoever bought as much as would be sufficient to make a new front for his house might extend the same seven feet further into the street;" by which impolitic permission the town was filled with wooden houses and the main street contracted in width.

The year 1513 was memorable for the double calamity of the plague and the disastrous defeat at Flodden. The latter misfortune filled Edinburgh with consternation; all capable of bearing arms were ordered to defend the walls, and the Privy Council for safety adjourned to Stirling, where James V. was crowned. At this crisis the fortifications were strengthened and a new wall built, which encompassed the high ground on the south, parts of which still remain. The plague continuing its virulence, the young king was removed to Dalkeith or Craigmillar. During his minority, the Earl of Arran and Cardinal Beatoun, jealous of the influence acquired by the Earl of Angus, through his marriage with the Queen Dowager, attacked him and his partizans in the street, near the Netherbow port, in which conflict more than two hundred and fifty men were slain, and the residue of the Hamilton's or Arran's party expelled by the Douglases, or a faction of Angus. This bloody affair was designated by the populace, "Cleanse the Causeway." In consequence of the prevailing disquietude, the Privy Council and Parliament frequently met in the Tolbooth, or common gaol. In 1514 the small force was appointed afterwards known by the name of the "City Guard," which was dissolved so lately as 1817. In 1528 excitements and disturbances arose in the city, from the secret diffusion of the principles of the Reformation.

In the year 1532 the College of Justice, consisting of 14 judges under a president, was established by James V. with its seat in the city, and from this time dates also the Society of Advocates. A great fire in this year destroyed part of the city, and about this period rows of obstructing tenements were removed, and many salutary regulations enforced: the High street was paved, and lanterns were ordered to be hung out at night by the inhabitants. In 1534, Norman Gourlay and David Straiton were tried and condemned at Holyrood for heresy, and executed at Greenside: in 1543, the magistrates having thought proper to deprive the craftsmen of the privilege of voting at the election of provosts and bailies, the deacons drew their swords in the council chamber: in 1544 Henry VIII. of England, in revenge for the opposition made by the Catholic regency of Arran and Beatoun to the marriage of his son Edward with the young Queen Mary, sent an army and fleet to ravage Scotland, under the command of the Earl of Hertford, who, landing at Leith, set fire to Edinburgh and burnt the abbey and palace at Holyrood. The attempt to capture the castle was unsuccessful; but the departing foe destroyed the pier of Leith, seized the ships in the harbour, and "neither pyle, village, town, nor house, in their way homewards was left unburnt." In consequence of this outrage, a French garrison was introduced four years afterwards, under D'Esse, who fortified Leith.

About the year 1556, the reformer, John Knox, became conspicuous, and subsequently the Reformation made rapid progress in Scotland, but not without strife and bloodshed, as the Protestant mobs destroyed many of the religious houses. On the anniversary of Saint Giles, the patron saint of Edinburgh, the priests and monks were attacked and the effigy of the saint, which they were carrying in procession, was destroyed: it is fortunate that the rage of the reformers in Edinburgh was confined to the decorations and furniture of the churches, so that two of the chief ecclesiastical edifices still remain, while the convents and monasteries were converted into dwelling houses. But for the arrival of an English force to the assistance of the Protestants, the issue of the contest would have been doubtful. The first assembly of the reformed kirk met in Edinburgh on the 15th January, 1560, a parliament having been held the same year, which passed a law establishing the Presbyterian form of government for the Church of Scotland. On the 9th of August, 1561, Mary Queen of Scots landed at Leith from France, and was well received, but her predilection for the Romish ritual soon abated her popularity. Darnley was proclaimed king at the market cross on the 30th of July, 1565, having the previous day (Sunday), within the chapel of Holyrood, become the husband of Queen Mary. On the 9th of the following March, David Rizzio, the Italian favourite of the queen, was murdered in the palace by Darnley and his confederates. On the 19th of June, 1566, the queen gave birth to a son, afterwards James the Sixth of Scotland, and the First of England. On the 10th of February, 1567, while Darnley sojourned in a secluded house, called the Kirk-o'-Field, near the site of the present University, it was blown up by gunpowder, and he lost his life. Many circumstances coincided to involve the Earl of Bothwell in suspicion of planning the murder and the queen of guilty privity: be this as it may, Bothwell, having divorced himself from his wife, became the husband of the queen on 15 May, 1567, three months after its perpetration. This marriage took place in the palace of Holyrood, and was the occasion of fresh disturbances in Edinburgh. So formidable was the insurrection, that the queen and Bothwell, on the 6th of June, fled first to Borthwick Castle, and thence to Dunbar, which abandonment of the capital was followed by the entry of 3,000 insurgents. On the 15th June, 1567, the queen was brought back to Edinburgh, and the next day was sent a prisoner to Lochleven Castle. A regency was then formed in the name of the infant son of Mary, James VI., and the Earl of Moray was proclaimed regent; but the assassination of this popular favourite, 20 June, 1570, at Linlithgow, threw the capital into confusion. The struggle between the contending parties was renewed with alternate ascendency: the Earl of Lennox became the new regent, and Kirkcaldy, of Grange, the provost of the town and governor of the castle, declared for the queen, whose party held a parliament in the Tolbooth, while that of the regent held theirs in the Canongate. Kirkcaldy seized all the arms he could find and planted a battery on the steeple of St. Giles, and being supplied by France with money and ammunition, he and his associates became formidable antagonists to the regency. The Earl of Morton and the regent, on the other side, having united, fortified Leith, and for two years the two parties waged a fluctuating warfare, until Queen Elizabeth of England, at the entreaty of Morton, sent a small army from Berwick, which soon reduced the castle, and the captive Kirkcaldy, with his brother, were hanged at the Cross, 3 August, 1573, although they had surrendered under promise of merciful treatment. The young king having decided to assume the government himself, entered the city with great pomp, and convened a parliament in the Tolbooth, and tranquillity was in some degree restored. The Earl of Morton, the late regent, being accused as an accessory to the murder of Darnley, was convicted and executed by a machine called the "maiden," similar to the guillotine, and alleged to be an invention of his own. The University of Edinburgh, founded with money bequeathed by a Bishop of Ross in 1558, was finished, and received a royal charter from James VI. April, 1582, and around it arose many subordinate colleges and schools. The poor, also, were not forgotten; funds for the maintenance of the poor were granted from the revenues of the suppressed religious houses and their lands. The city council presented James with 5,000 merks, about £280 sterling, to provide an entertainment, and early in 1590 they were required to send a ship to Denmark, at the cost of £500, to bring home the king and his bride, who was crowned at Holyrood 17 May, 1590; they also presented the bride with a valuable jewel, pledged to them by the king as security for a considerable sum advanced him. Still these munificent donations did not exempt the citizens from "intolerable impositions and grievous exactions." In 1591 the Earl of Bothwell made a daring but unsuccessful attempt to seize the person of the king: Bothwell escaped, but eight of his followers were executed. A fresh cause of tumult soon arose; the young Earl of Moray, the heir of the regent, was assassinated by the Earl of Huntly; and, as the king was suspected of connivance, the citizens indignantly arose and openly insulted both the king and his ministers. James thought it prudent to retreat to Glasgow. Not long afterwards the monarch was presented by these same citizens with ten tuns of wine, and a hundred of their number were in attendance at the baptism of Prince Henry: a guard of fifty citizens was also appointed to protect his person from Bothwell. In December, 1596, James, by an attempt to restrain the freedom of the preachers, excited an insurrection that occasioned his prerogative to be insulted and his person to be endangered. He, in consequence, retired from the city and ordered all the public courts to be removed. In 1596 James was again in collision with his subjects in consequence of some English players being introduced into the city. At this period an important alteration was made in the computation of time. The year had hitherto commenced on the 25th of March, but by a Convention of Estates, which met on the 10th of December, 1599, it was ordered that in future New Year's Day should be on the 1st of January.

In 1600, the Duke of Rohan, having visited Edinburgh, states that the city was about one thousand paces in length and from four to five hundred in breadth; and adds that there was nothing remarkable in it but the great street (now High street), which was very long and broad, and extended from one end of the town to the other; the houses, he says, were not sumptuous, being almost all built of wood.

On the 24th of March, 1603, by the death of Queen Elizabeth, James became king of England, to which country he immediately departed, after taking formal farewell of the citizens of Edinburgh at the church of St. Giles. In this year the king ordered the magistrates of Edinburgh to wear gowns and have a sword of state carried before them; but instead of sending the amount of his debt to them, 59,000 merks, he obliged them to be content with 20,000, in full of all demands; notwithstanding which, when the king paid his long-promised visit to his Scottish capital, in 1618, he was received with pomp and addressed with adulation. They entertained him with a banquet, and presented him with a silver basin with 10,000 merks (about £560 sterling) in it, in double gold angels. A parliament was immediately convened, and among other acts which it passed was one for the restitution of archbishops, bishops and chapters. About this time the town council purchased the mills of Bonnington from Robert and John Logan, with the lands and tiends belonging to them, for 1,230 merks Scots (£68 6s. 8d. sterling). In 1621 an Act was passed for the covering of houses with lead, slates or tiles, instead of thatch, and water was introduced the same year by pipes; three new bells were imported from Holland—two for St. Giles's church and one for the Netherbow port. March 27th, 1625, James died; and on the 31st Charles I. was proclaimed king in his stead; and 15th June, 1633, he was crowned king of Scotland in the Abbey of Holyrood.

The erection of Edinburgh into a bishopric, and an order for the introduction of a liturgy into the churches, caused great tumult in the city, 23rd July, 1637, and in a general assembly at Glasgow, in 1638, resolutions were passed condemning the liturgy and deposing the bishops. In August, 1641, Charles visited Edinburgh. The "great rebellion," as it is termed, broke out shortly after, during which the "solemn league and covenant" between the two nations for the extirpation of prelacy was signed in the High church, Edinburgh, in July, 1643, and 1,200 men were sent in consequence to assist the English Parliamentary forces against Charles; but in 1645, the Covenanters being routed by Montrose, at Kilsyth, Edinburgh was threatened with destruction by the marquess unless the prisoners of the king's party were instantly released, and the city at this moment being desolated by the plague, his demands were complied with. On the 18th May, 1650, the Marquess of Montrose was brought a prisoner into Edinburgh, and three days after was hanged at the Cross.

The Scots being averse to Republicanism, proclaimed the exiled Charles the Second as their king, and crowned him at Stirling, 1st January, 1651. In December, 1650, after the battle of Dunbar, Cromwell was in possession of Edinburgh and its castle, but the magistrates had fled to Stirling, the head-quarters of Charles, leaving the city to be governed by thirty chosen citizens. The battle of Worcester having placed Scotland completely in the power of Cromwell, commissioners were sent by him from England to rule the kingdom, who arrived at Dalkeith in January, 1652; and from them the humble citizens were obliged to obtain consent ere they could elect new magistrates. Under the sway of Cromwell, Edinburgh and Leith enjoyed repose; but so greatly were they impoverished by so many years of strife, that very few of the inhabitants were in a condition to pay their debts, and the magistrates were served with a charge of horning for £550,000 Scots (£43,833 6s. 8d. sterling), which, with difficulty, they obtained time to pay.

During the period of the Commonwealth many reforms were introduced in the municipal regulations At the restoration of Charles II. in 1660 the town council, in return for a donation of £1,000 made to his Majesty, received permission to levy a tax upon the citizens of one-third of a penny on each pint of ale, and twopence on each pint of wine consumed in the city. Adam Woodcock, at this period, was licensed by the town council to run a coach between Edinburgh and Leith, the fare to be fourpence each person; and the baron bailie of Broughton had a grant made to him of the goods and chattels of all women condemned for witchcraft. In August, 1660, the English tribunals gave place to the ancient forms of government, and the first Parliament, which assembled 1st January, 1661, rescinded all Acts passed during the last twenty-three years, and restored episcopacy. Severities towards the Presbyterians followed. The Covenanters of the west and south rose in arms. They reached the Pentland Hills on the 28th November, 1666, where they were overtaken by General Dalziel, with a body of cavalry and dispersed. About fifty were killed, and one hundred and fifty taken prisoners—twenty of these were executed at Edinburgh. In 1672 the Court of Justiciary was instituted. In 1678, it appears from a "list of the hail possessors (of houses) in the different parishes," taken under authority of the magistrates, that there were at this time within the royalty, 3,333 families, so that, taking five as the average number of each, the population amounted to 16,665.

In 1679 the Duke of York (afterwards James II.) came to reside in Edinburgh, but though popular at first gradually estranged the people by his attachment to the ancient faith and by having a private chapel for the Roman ritual arranged in the palace. In January, 1685, an equestrian statue of Charles II. was ordered for the Parliamentary square, and in February of the same year the king died, and James was proclaimed at the Cross as VII. of Scotland and II. of England. In June, 1685, the 9th Earl of Argyll was executed for a rising in favour of the Duke of Monmouth; the earl having been indebted to Heriot's Hospital to the amount of £58,403 10s. Scots, the corporation of Edinburgh was compelled to pay the money. The suspension of the test soon disclosed the intentions of the king. Early in 1686 every printer and bookseller in Edinburgh was forbidden by the Privy Council to print or sell any book animadverting on the Romish faith; this brought about several riots, which were energetically suppressed by the magistracy, and the king as a recognition of their attachment restored to them the impost upon ale. Upon the arrival of the Prince of Orange, the Presbyterians got the upper hand, and the abbey was pillaged and the Chapel Royal destroyed, while the Earl of Perth (the chancellor) fled from the city.

On the 14th of March, 1689, the Convention of Estates assembled—the most momentous meeting that Edinburgh ever witnessed. It resolved that James having forfeited the crown, it should be offered to William and Mary; a second result of their deliberations was the memorable "claim of rights;" a new election of municipal officers was advised, by poll of the burgesses paying, watching and warding, and liable for other public claims; several ministers were deprived of their pulpits for refusing to pray for the new sovereigns; the convention became a parliament, and the established religion was declared Presbyterian. The Duke of Gordon held the castle for James, but surrendered it in June, 1690. Towards the close of William's reign, six ships sailed from the Firth of Forth to plant a colony on the Isthmus of Darien; and when the failure of this scheme became known in March, 1699, the miscarriage of the enterprise was attributed to the influence of the king, and serious riots took place. On Saturday, the 3rd of February, 1700, a fire broke out on the south side of Parliament square, which destroyed an extensive pile of buildings, including the Advocates' Library and the Bank of Scotland, and rendered houseless nearly 200 families.

In the reign of Queen Anne the discussion of the terms of Union caused disturbances from the early part of 1703 to 1707, which showed how unpopular the measure was, and the parliament and commissioners were compelled to seek the protection of the military during the ratification of the articles. From the 1st May, 1707, when the Act of Union came into operation, the aspect of the Scottish capital became strikingly changed, improvement ceased, and for nearly half a century little activity or energy was displayed. In 1715 two attempts were made by the Jacobite party to get possession of the city, both of which failed. In 1730, at the execution of Wilson for smuggling, a riot occurred, and Captain Porteous, commandant of the town guard, ordered his men to fire on the people, killing some; for this he was committed for trial, but the populace suspected that he would be let off, and early one morning a small but well organised mob, preceded by the town drummer of the Canongate, marched up the High street, disarmed the town guard, broke open the Tolbooth, and taking Porteous out hung him from a dyer's pole in the Grassmarket, dispersing immediately he was dead; and it is not the least extraordinary circumstance connected with this singular affair, that none of the actors in the tragedy were ever discovered, although a large reward was offered. In 1745, Prince Charles Edward, after the king's cavalry brigade had retired in disorder from Corstorphine, sent forward a regiment of Athol Highlanders, who took possession of the town but failed to get the castle. The prince entered Holyrood, where he held levees and gave balls, and on 21st September he left to fight the battle of Prestonpans and march on London. In 1778, the mutiny of Lord Seaforth's Highland regiment, on account of their being ordered to India without payment of some arrears, and a stipulation as to the limit of their service, occasioned a considerable sensation. The mutineers ascended the lofty eminence of Arthur's Seat, where they remained encamped until an adjustment was effected by Lords Dunmore and Macdonald. During the long war which ensued on the French revolution, and when the country was in dread of invasion, volunteer companies were formed in Edinburgh. The visit of George IV. lasted from 15th August, 1822, to the 29th He took up his abode at Dalkeith House, as the guest of the Duke of Buccleuch, held a levee at Holyrood, and attended public worship on Sunday in the High Church. On the 20th the king was present at the ball of the Caledonian Hunt, and next evening he saw "Rob Roy" performed at the theatre. A splendid banquet was prepared for his Majesty, in the great hall of the Parliament House, by the lord provost, magistrates and town council. The lord provost received a baronetcy.

On the 1st September, 1842, Her Majesty Queen Victoria landed at Granton, and proceeded to Dalkeith; the reception was a quiet one, as the magistracy of Edinburgh did not expect the landing to take place so early, and did not get to the city boundary in time. A levee and drawing room were held at Holyrood Palace, and there was a procession through the city. On Tuesday morning, September 6th, Her Majesty took her departure for the north. On Monday, the 14th, the Queen again passed through Edinburgh on her way to Dalkeith, to embark at Granton.

The Castle of Edinburgh, founded 617, on the site of the Pictish Tower of Refuge, used by them for the protection of their women and valuables, occupies the western and highest extremity of the central ridge on which the old town is built. It is a polygon fort, standing on a scarped rock rising abruptly about 400 feet from the plain, south of the north rock, and accessible only from the eastern side; its principal faces lying east, where the Halfmoon battery dominates the approach; south, where the old palace and barracks overhang the Grassmarket; south-west, where the new barracks look down on Castle terrace; north-west, backed by the storehouse and magazine and looking towards the Dean cemetery; and the north front, which (trending rather to the south-east) contains the Argyll battery, overlooking the site of the old North loch. The entrance to the castle is from the head of the Castle hill, across the Esplanade, on which stand monuments to the Duke of York, to the officers and men of the 78th Regiment (Ross-shire Buffs) and to Col. Mackenzie, 92nd Highlanders. Over a dry ditch by a road passing below the Halfmoon, and reaching the crest of the hill, near the governor's house and new barracks, a turn to the left then leads to the chapel of St. Margaret. Here is to be seen a curious piece of ancient ordnance, called "Mons Meg," made of longitudinal bars of hammered iron, girt with iron hoops; it is 13 feet in length and 20 inches in calibre. Stone balls were fired from it, and some of them lie beside it. It is supposed to have been made at Mons, in the 15th century. It burst in 1682, on being fired in honour of the Duke of York's visit to Scotland. It was carried to London in 1754, and brought back in 1829. To the right a passage at the rear of the Halfmoon gives access to the Old Palace quadrangle, entering at the north-east angle. The building on the east side is the Old Palace, containing the crown room, in which are kept the crown, sceptre and sword of state for the kingdom of Scotland, together with the lord treasurer's staff; they are of elegant workmanship, and in perfect preservation. The crown is of pure gold, highly ornamented with precious stones; the sceptre is of silver, double gilt, with a stem two feet long, of hexagonal form, divided by three buttons or knobs; it is surmounted with a crystal globe, two inches and a quarter in diameter; its whole length is 34 inches. The sword of state is five feet long, and of exquisite workmanship; the pommel and hilt are silver gilt, and 15 inches in length; the traverse is 17½ inches. The scabbard is of crimson velvet, and richly ornamented. This sword was presented by Pope Julius II. to James IV. The lord treasurer's rod of office is of silver gilt, and of beautiful execution. Besides these relics are a ruby ring, set with diamonds, worn by Charles I. at his Scottish coronation; the golden collar of the Order of the Garter, sent by Elizabeth to James VI.; and the badge of the Order of the Thistle, set with diamonds, bequeathed by Cardinal York to George IV. In a small room on the ground floor of this palace, Mary Queen of Scots gave birth on the 19th of June, 1556, to her only son, James VI. of Scotland, afterwards James I. of England. The oak panels have been renewed after their original form, and copies of original portraits of Queen Mary and her son placed in it. The south side of the court yard is occupied by the old Parliament House, restored in 1887, and the remaining two sides are barracks. St. Margaret's chapel was dedicated to the wife of King Malcolm Ceanmore. The area of the rock on which the castle stands measures about seven statute acres, and the highest point is 437 feet above the level of the sea. Within are magazines and storerooms for upwards of 30,000 stand of arms, and barracks for 2,000 men with their officers. In 1093, Malcolm III. (Malcolm Ceanmore), having fallen in battle at Alnwick, the castle of Edinburgh was besieged by Donald Bane, his brother, who aspired to the crown, to which the old Scottish customs gave him a right to pretend, although Malcolm had left children. The castle fell into the hands of the besiegers, the garrison escaping by a postern, under shelter of a thick fog, and carrying with them to Dunfermline the body of Margaret, Malcolm's queen, known as St. Margaret, the sister of Edgar Atheling, whom the Saxons of England sought to elevate to the throne after the battle of Hastings. William the Lion occasionally resided in the castle of Edinburgh, and in 1174 it was delivered up to the English, pledged for his ransom when taken prisoner at the battle of Alnwick, but shortly after restored on his marriage with the sister of Viscount Beaumont. In 1239 the daughter of Henry III. of England, marrying Alexander III. had this castle assigned for her residence. During the contest between Bruce and Baliol, in 1296, the castle was besieged and taken by the English. It was several times taken and retaken, during the struggle which then began, and ultimately decided in favour of the independence of Scotland by the battle of Bannockburn.

In 1297 it was dismantled by Sir William Wallace; having been repaired, it again fell into the hands of the English, when Robert Bruce caused it, with the other recovered fortresses, to be demolished. It was in ruins in 1336, when it served for a retreat to Count Namur's forces, defeated by the Earl of Moray. It remained in ruins till 1337, when Edward III. of England gave orders for it being rebuilt and placed a strong garrison in it. In 1341 it was surprised by William Douglas. In 1371 David II. died in it. In 1400 the castle was taken by Henry IV. of England. It was seized by the Earl of Douglas in 1416 and held by him till 1418. After the murder of James I. at Perth, 1436, his queen and the royal family took refuge in the castle. James II. in the year 1438, was detained here by Sir William Crichton, the chancellor, till he was conveyed with his own consent out of the castle in a wardrobe chest. Here, too, William, sixth Earl of Douglas, and his brother David, were, in 1440, basely murdered by Crichton, who envied the earl's riches and dreaded his power. James III. was also confined in this castle by his subjects for nine months, till he was released in the year 1482 by the Duke of Albany, who, assisted by the citizens of Edinburgh, surprised the castle, which was converted into a state prison for James V. and his brother, while infants. In 1573 this fortress was held for the unfortunate Queen Mary, at that time a prisoner in Fotheringay Castle, by the faithful and heroic Kirkcaldy of Grange, who resolutely defended it for thirty-three days. When the fortifications were battered down, the blockhouse on the east taken by assault, every supply of water exhausted and the garrison in mutiny, he made an honourable capitulation—not to the regent Morton, but to Sir William Drury, commander of the English forces, on a guarantee of honourable treatment; but Queen Elizabeth, regardless alike of her general's honour and her own, gave the prisoners up to the regent's disposal and Kirkcaldy was hung. In 1650 the castle sustained a siege of about two months by the Parliamentary army, commanded by Cromwell, and at last yielded on honourable terms. After the flight of James II. at the close of 1688, it was long held for him by the Duke of Gordon, with a weak and ill-provided garrison. During this time the Viscount Dundee, better known in Scottish history and tradition as Graham of Claverhouse, clambered up the precipice to hold a conference with Gordon, before he raised an army in the Highlands on behalf of James. In 1715 an unsuccessful attempt was made by the Jacobites to surprise this fortress; and in 1745, although the Highlanders were masters of the town, they did not venture to attack the castle. During the war in the beginning of the present century a number of French prisoners were confined in the castle, but since then there have been no further memorable events in its history.

OLD AND NEW EDINBURGH.

The present city of Edinburgh consists of two parts, called the Old Town and the New; the Old Town covers the elevated ridge sloping from the summit of the castle on the west to the foot of the Canongate on the east. The New Town is built on the more level ground, which forms a gentle declivity towards the north, a continuous street uniting it with Leith on the north-east. These two divisions are separated by a deep hollow, through which passes one of the principal lines of railway, connecting Edinburgh with the west and north of Scotland. The North Bridge and the Mound cross the hollow and connect the Old Town with the New. Provost Drummond, on the 21st of October, 1763, laid the first stone of the North Bridge, the completion of which formed a ready connection with the New Town; this bridge was widened in 1876 and is now (1896) to be replaced by a new bridge, the foundation stone of which was laid with Masonic honours by Lord Provost Macdonald, on 25th May, 1896, and which, when complete, will consist of three arches, each 175 feet span, in place of the present 11 narrow arches, thus affording means of enlarging and improving the Waverley station; the railway company contribute towards the cost of the new bridge and propose to erect a large hotel at the north-east angle. In 1767 an Act was passed for extending the royalty over the fields to the north; the New Town was immediately commenced and the buildings proceeded with so much rapidity that in 1771 St. Andrew square and the streets which open upon it were nearly finished; since which, streets, squares, places, terraces, crescents, circuses and public edifices have arisen in rapid succession, wholly built of stone. The principal streets of the original parallelogram, styled the New Town, are three—Princes street, George street and Queen street, and these are intersected by others at right angles. Princes street extends nearly in a straight line from east to west for about a mile; it partakes of the character of a terrace, facing the Old Town, from which it is separated by a wide valley laid out as public gardens; these are divided into two sections by the Mound, opposite Hanover street, on which are built the Royal Institution and the National Gallery. George street, 115 feet broad, which runs down the centre of the parallelogram, is terminated by a fine square, called St. Andrew square, on the east, and by another named Charlotte square at its western extremity. Queen street, which forms the north side of the parallelogram, consists, like Princes street, of a single row of houses, which look northwards, and command from their upper windows a view of the Firth of Forth and the opposite coast and hills of Fife. In front of Queen street are Queen Street gardens, northward of which is the second part of the New Town, beginning with Abercrombie place and Heriot row, which look towards the gardens. A central street of this part of the New Town is called Great King street, and is terminated, like George street, by large open areas; one of these is named Drummond place, the other the Royal circus. A third section of the New Town occupies a site formerly the park of the Earl of Moray, between Charlotte square and the Water of Leith, comprising Moray place, Ainslie place, Randolph crescent, and other streets to the west. A noble bridge of four arches, called Dean bridge, crosses the Water of Leith on the north-west of this part of the New Town, the height of the bridge being 105 feet above the bed of the stream, which here flows through a deep dell or ravine.

The New Town also comprehends Leith walk, the road connecting Leith with Edinburgh, and the buildings on the slopes of the Calton hill, including the magnificent terraces called Regent terrace, Carlton terrace and Royal terrace. Above these terraces, on the slope of the hill, are extensive gardens, whilst the summit of the Calton hill is crowned with monuments. In a line with Princess street is a grand approach to the city from the east by the Regent's bridge, which passes over the unsightly district called the Low Calton. The Act of Parliament authorising the erection of this bridge and the formation of the road, the greatest and most useful of the architectural improvements of Edinburgh, was passed in 1814; the bridge was finished in March, 1819. The arch over the Low Calton is 50 feet wide, 45 in height on the north side and 54 on the south. In connection with the New Town the city has recently extended westward, on the Glasgow road, where Murrayfield, at first a cluster of villas, at some distance from the city, may now be regarded as a suburb. Towards the north, also, the New Town is completely connected by groups of villas with Granton, Trinity, Newhaven and Leith.

The Old Town of Edinburgh extends a slight distance to the northward and southward of the central ridge occupied by the High street, which is itself prolonged up the acclivity westward, under the names of Lawnmarket and Castle hill, to the gate of the castle; eastward it assumes the name of Canongate, and terminates at Holyrood Palace. Canongate was formerly a separate burgh, but is now municipally, as well as for parliamentary representation, incorporated with Edinburgh. Many of the nobles of Scotland once had residences in the Canongate. The old burgh of Portsburgh, to the south-west of the Old Town, is now also incorporated with the extended city.

The Old Town, rendered quaint and picturesque by the height and crowding of the buildings, was in a sanitary point of view somewhat defective, especially in the narrow closes which radiate like the small bones of a fish from either side of the High street and which contained in their lofty tenement houses a very dense population. The comprehensive scheme of Old Town improvement proposed and matured by Dr. William Chambers, and authorised by an Act of 1867, consisted in opening up new streets, widening some of the closes and leaving open spaces. Several of the crowded districts have been cleared out and new streets formed. The accounts of this scheme were finally closed in 1889. These show that £560,371 was expended in acquiring and removing old buildings, and that there had been derived from the sale of sites in the new streets £156,932; from the improvement rate £380,903; and from other sources £31,112; in all £568,947, the balance of £8,576 having been transferred to the credit of the Town Council's account for general improvements in the city.

The Cowgate is a narrow street to the south of the High street, and nearly parallel to it, at the bottom of the ridge. Of the streets leading southwards from the High street, the two principal ones are carried over the Cowgate by bridges. South Bridge street is the chief outlet from the city to the south. Its prolongation receives the name of Nicolson street and Clerk street, and terminates in the road to Penicuik and Peebles. It is a street of good houses and shops, and in it are the University, Surgeons' Hall, and other fine buildings.

About the time the New Town began to be built, an extension to the south took place, of which the chief evidence is to be found in George square, closely adjacent to the densely-populated parts of the Old Town. To the south, Newington, on the Penicuik road, is a pleasant suburb; the village of Morningside, more to the west, is incorporated with the town; and between Newington and Morningside is the well-built Grange district, while to the west the district of Merchiston is covered with villa residences. These quarters have a milder climate than the New Town, being sheltered from the cold easterly winds by the Salisbury crags.

MUNICIPAL.

Before the Scottish Burgh Reform Act, passed in 1833, the Corporation of Edinburgh was of a close character, though not altogether without an admixture of popular representation. The city has since been divided into thirteen wards for municipal and parliamentary elections, and the city returned two members to Parliament, but under the "Redistribution of Seats Act, 1885," the parliamentary burgh was extended to the same limits as the municipal city and separated into four divisions, and was given two additional representatives.

The administration of the municipal and police affairs of the city of Edinburgh is vested in the Town Council, consisting of forty-one members. Of this number, one (the Dean of Guild) is annually returned by the Guild brethren; one (the Deacon Convener) is annually returned by the Incorporated Trades, and thirty-nine are appointed by popular election—three for each of the thirteen wards into which the city is divided. It is now (1896) proposed to enlarge the burgh boundaries. The Council appoints from the ward-elected members a lord provost, six bailies and a city treasurer. The Lord Provost is Lord-Lieutenant of the county of the city, and his office, as respects dignity and duties, resembles that of the Lord Mayor of London, while the functions of the bailies are analogous to those of the aldermen. Of the ward-elected members of Council one-third must retire annually, but the Lord Provost and the City Treasurer hold their offices for three years from the time of appointment. The magistrates of Edinburgh hold criminal and civil courts, and along with the Sheriffs of Edinburghshire are judges in the police court. The Dean of Guild presides in the Dean of Guild court, which exercises jurisdiction in matters relating to the erection, alteration and sanitary arrangement of buildings, and is possessed of considerable powers for insuring the public safety in regard to removal or reconstruction of insecure and dangerous buildings within the city. The City Treasurer is chairman of the Treasurer's or Finance Committee, and represents in the Town Council the financial department of the Corporation business. Of the principal officers of the Corporation there are—the Town Clerk, who is the Council's secretary and the recorder of its minutes; the City Chamberlain, who has the accounting with the Council's revenues; and the City Assessors, who are the legal advisers of the judges in the several city courts: the ordinary income of the city is about £30,000. There were formerly fourteen incorporated trades in the city, but now there are only thirteen, the Surgeons and Barbers (who had a "seal of cause" from the Town Council in 1505) having ceased to exist as an incorporation connected with the city trades. The following are the thirteen existing incorporations:—1. The Goldsmiths, formerly attached to the Hammermen, were constituted in 1581, and have their hall in South Bridge street. 2. The Skinners or Glovers were incorporated in 1586. 3. The Furriers were constituted by Act of Council in 1593. 4. The Hammermen were incorporated in 1483, and consisted at first of blacksmiths, goldsmiths, lorimers, saddlers, cutlers and armourers, but the goldsmiths were separated from them in 1581; they meet in the chapel of St. Mary Magdalen, in the Cowgate. 5 and 6. The Wrights and Masons were constituted in 1475, but by a decree of the Court of Session in 1703 the bowmakers, glaziers, plumbers and upholsterers were added to the masons; and to the wrights were attached the painters, slaters, sievewrights and coopers; this incorporation is known also by the title of the United Incorporation of St. Mary's Chapel. 7. The Tailors were incorporated in 1500. 8. The Bakers were in existence as a corporate body before 1522, but the exact period of their constitution is unknown. 9. The Fleshers (or butchers) were incorporated before 1488. 10. The Cordwainers (or shoemakers) in 1449. 11. The Websters (or weavers) in 1475. 12. The Waulkers (or cloth workers) were incorporated in 1500, and the Hatters were united with them in 1672. 13. The bonnetmakers were incorporated in 1530, and in 1640 the trade of Lilster (or dyer) was united with them. The Candlemakers were chartered by the magistrates in 1517, although they are not one of the incorporated trades, and have no vote in the election of the Deacon Convener. Scottish trade incorporations formerly possessed exclusive rights of trading within their respective burghs, but these privileges were abolished by statute in 1846. The incorporated trades or "craftsmen" of Edinburgh possess considerable properties and funds, and they maintain and manage an institution (the Maiden Hospital) for the education and upbringing of daughters of freemen craftsmen.

The Police Establishment was remodelled in 1822, and several important changes have been made in it since from time to time. When the boundaries of the city were extended in 1882, a considerable addition was made. The police force now numbers 534 men. The chief police office is situated in High street, and there are nine sub-offices in different parts of the city, two of these being handsome buildings in West Port and Causewayside. A Police Court is held daily, the judges being the bailies and the sheriff substitute, who preside in alternate months. A Burgh Court is held daily, presided over by justices of the peace for the county of the city of Edinburgh. The Lock-up House is at the back of the Parliament House, and is for the reception of offenders under examination.

The present water supply, under the management of trustees elected by Edinburgh, Leith and Portobello, comes from the Pentland and Moorfoot hills, where reservoirs have been constructed, from which it is brought by pipes. The supply is constant, and almost entirely of spring water. There is a large reservoir in the city for the purpose of regulating the constant service. The original water company, incorporated in 1819, was transferred to the Edinburgh and District Water Trust under the "Edinburgh and District Water Act, 1869," and the "Edinburgh and District Works (additional supply) Act, 1874," and the Acts 1876, 1880 and 1889; but in order to secure a larger supply a scheme has been sanctioned by an Act obtained in 1895, and known as the "Talla Water Scheme." Under the first contracts approved by the Trust the valley of the Talla in Peeblesshire will be dammed and the water thus accumulated carried by tunnels and aqueducts to a reservoir at Fairmilehead, near the city; this involves the erection of a new road and a short branch railway, and the pipe service is calculated to carry 24,000,000 gallons daily, while the tunnels are to be capable of conveying 30,000,000 gallons.

The lighting of the city is in the hands of the Corporation and is carried out by both gas and electricity; the former supplied from works managed by the Edinburgh and Leith Gas Commissioners. The electric lighting was finally decided on late in 1893, when the work of designing and superintending the whole scheme for public and private supply was entrusted to Professor Kennedy. Work was commenced at the station and in the streets in May, 1894, and the station was opened for the continuous supply on the 11th of April, 1895. In the central and northern districts of the city, where the light is most used, a low tension three-wire system has been adopted, and in the southern and eastern districts an alternating current high tension system is worked. The boiler-house has been designed to contain 17 boilers, and the engine rooms are each about 102 feet long.

TRADE.

Edinburgh, independent of Leith, its shipping port, possesses but few manufactures; still there are some departments in which it may justly boast a superiority. Printing and publishing are carried on to a considerable extent, and many valuable works of the age have emanated from the Edinburgh press. The making of paper machinery, type founding, and the manufacture of gas and water meters, iron and wire fencing, india-rubber goods, vulcanite &c. are all branches of importance. Edinburgh ale has long been famous, and there are many extensive breweries in the city.

The Bank of Scotland is the oldest banking company in Scotland, and thus naturally assumed the name which it still bears; but it has nothing of that character of a national institution which the Bank of England possesses. It was established by Act of the Parliament of Scotland, in 1695. Next to it in antiquity is the Royal Bank of Scotland, incorporated by royal charter in 1727. The British Linen Company, now merely a bank, but at first also engaged in the linen trade, was incorporated by royal charter in 1746. After this came the Commercial Bank, established in 1810, and the National Bank of Scotland, founded in 1825. The Union Bank of Scotland, established in 1830, and incorporated by Act of Parliament in 1862, is the representative of several banks, one of which was originally a company engaged not only in banking, but in the tobacco trade, and was founded in Edinburgh not very long after the Royal Bank. After it had become a mere banking company, it was long one of the chief banks of Edinburgh, under the name of Sir William Forbes and Co. Having united with a Glasgow bank, it assumed its present name, and it has head offices both in Edinburgh and Glasgow. The Clydesdale Bank Limited, a Glasgow banking company of recent origin, and having its head office in Glasgow, represents in Edinburgh the Edinburgh and Leith Bank, afterwards, in consequence of a union, known as the Edinburgh and Glasgow Bank.

The Union Bank has the greatest authorised note circulation of any bank in Scotland, £454,346. Next to it is the British Linen Company, £438,024. The authorised circulation of the Commercial Bank is £374,880; that of the Bank of Scotland is £343,418; of the Royal Bank, £216,451; the National Bank, £297,024; and the Clydesdale Bank, £274,321. The average actual circulation, based in part, under Sir Robert Peel's Act of 1846, on the coin held by the banks, is £5,164,160. The price of stock or shares of all the banks gives proof of their prosperity. The banking business of Glasgow is in great part conducted by the banks having their head offices in Edinburgh, as is also that of all the provincial towns of Scotland. The Scottish banking companies were at one time far more numerous, but the tendency of late has been towards the incorporation of the minor banks with the great banks of Edinburgh and Glasgow.

In fire and life assurances there are many establishments of high standing, having branches in the principal towns of the United Kingdom, and who have commodious business premises in the city. Amongst these may be mentioned the Scottish Widows' Fund, the Life Association of Scotland, the Scottish Provident Association, the Standard, the Caledonian, the Edinburgh, the Scottish Union and National, the North British and the English and Scottish Law Life Insurance Companies.

Edinburgh possesses various means of communication with all parts of the United Kingdom, by rail, road, sea and inland navigation. There are two terminal stations in the city—that of the North British Company, between Princes street and the Old Town, and that of the Caledonian Company, at the west end of Princes street. From the former of these stations, which is now being greatly enlarged, lines radiate in all directions, except to the south-west, to which those of the Caledonian Company chiefly extend. Water carriage between Edinburgh and Glasgow is furnished by the Union canal, joining the Forth and Clyde canal near Larbert, but the traffic on it has much diminished since the opening of railways. The basin of the canal is situated about half a mile south-west of the castle, and is called Port Hopetoun. The sea route is from Leith, and Granton and from the Trinity pier on the Forth.

ECCLESIASTICAL.

The parochial churches of Edinburgh were erected and maintained out of the funds of the burgh; from the same source and from certain port dues at Leith and Port Hopetoun the stipends of the ministers were derived. There were only thirteen parishes within what was the old City Parish of Edinburgh. The ministers of these old city parishes now receive their stipends of £600 a year through the Edinburgh Ecclesiastical Commissioners, in whom is vested the administration of the ecclesiastical revenues of the city. A large number of churches have also been erected and endowed by voluntary subscription, the ministers of which are maintained without burden to city funds. The following are some of the principal churches, including the three cathedrals:—St. Giles, the ancient cathedral of the Carolan diocese of Edinburgh, and now the High Kirk of the Church of Scotland and the official church for all Government ceremonials; the Episcopal Cathedral of St. Mary, the seat of the bishop of the revived see of Edinburgh; and the Roman Catholic Cathedral of St Mary, the Cathedral church of the Archiepiscopal diocese of St. Andrews and Edinburgh.

The see of Edinburgh was founded by Charles I. on his visit to the city for his coronation at Holyrood in the summer of 1633, and it then consisted of the shires of Edinburgh, Haddington and Linlithgow, and parts of Berwickshire and Stirlingshire; but the diocese now comprises the first three, the shires of Berwick, Peebles, Roxburgh and Selkirk, and parts of Alloa and Stirling. The diocese was abolished in 1689 by the Scottish "Convention of Estates" parliament, but was revived in 1720, when John Fullarton was appointed bishop and administrator, and several of his successors have held the office of Primus.

The ancient cathedral of St. Giles, which occupies an elevated site in the High street and Parliament square, was originally simply the parish church, and a cell to the Abbey of Dunfermline, but during the reign of James III. (1460-88) it was made collegiate, and on the formation of the see of Edinburgh was raised to the rank of a cathedral. There are records of the existence of a church here as early as the 9th century, and it then belonged to the Benedictine priory of Lindisfarne, in Northumbria; Alexander I. in 1120, erected a new church, and a richly carved doorway of this structure existed until 1797, when it was destroyed during the alterations made at that period. The 12th century church was destroyed in 1385, when the city was burnt by an English force under Thomas (Plantagenet), Duke of Gloucester; but a new and much larger structure was at once begun, and of this church much is still extant in the present fabric. The cathedral, as now existing, is in plan exceedingly irregular, and may be described as consisting principally of a choir of five bays, with clerestory and aisles of equal length, transepts, clerestoried nave of five bays, with aisles and a central tower; but appendant to the aisles, both of the nave and choir, and clustered about the transepts, are a number of other aisles or chapels, besides several additional structures erected for various purposes in recent years. The oldest portion of the fabric belongs to the church as rebuilt in the 14th century, and comprises the three westernmost bays of the choir, with those parts of the aisles corresponding thereto, the transepts and tower piers, the nave and its aisles, and the incorporated portions of the west front; the whole was vaulted in stone, and the greater part of this work remains, but the vaulting of the nave and south aisle was removed in 1829, and replaced by a plastered ceiling: during the period 1387-1416, five chapels were built on to the south aisle of the nave and two to the north aisle, one by Robert Stewart, Earl of Fife and Menteith, and subsequently Duke of Albany, and the other by William, Earl of Douglas and Mar; the two westernmost of the southern chapels, erected c. 1513, were removed in 1758, and the vaulting and roofs of the others taken down in 1829: the Albany aisle or chapel, on the north side, and St. Eloi's chapel on the west side of the north transept remain, but the latter was altered in 1829 and made to correspond with Chambers' aisle on the east side of the transept; about 1460 the choir was lengthened by two bays, a clerestory added, and the vaulting renewed after a more elaborate design; the easternmost pier of the north arcade, forming part of the new work, was erected as a memorial to James II. of Scotland, who was killed at Roxburgh Castle, 3 Aug. 1460, and its capital is enriched with heraldic shields: at the same time, or rather later, the Preston aisle was added on the south of the choir, as a memorial to William Preston, who bequeathed to the church a relic of the patron saint; this aisle has elegant vaulting, similar to that of the choir, and is now fitted with stalls and a special pew for the royal family; the royal entrance, a spacious porch at the east end o fthe aisle, was added c. 1883, and incorporates a fine recessed doorway of 1387, originally belonging to a porch, but shifted in 1829: south of the Preston aisle and adjoining the transept is the chapel erected and endowed in 1513 by Walter Chepman, who, in 1507, introduced the art of printing into Scotland, and was here buried in 1532: the Caithness or Moray aisle on the west side of this transept was reduced to its present dimensions in 1829: the tower dates from between 1485 and 1495, and is 30 feet square, the height to the top of the open stonework being 142½ feet, or to the apex of the spirelet 161 feet; it rises two stages above the roof and has a quatrefoiled crested parapet, from within which rise a number of pinnacled buttresses, carrying a series of eight stone ribs converging to a centre and supporting a mass of stone ornamented with canopies and finished with a spirelet and vane: in 1571 the tower was fortified and cannon mounted upon it, and in 1600 was used as a prison; it now contains a clock with four dials. In 1560, on the establishment of Protestantism, the interior was "purged" or dismantled, the altars and everything deemed superstitious removed, and the relics dispersed or sold; but in 1633, on its being made a cathedral, the episcopal form of worship was renewed, and continued until the abolition of the see in 1689: in the 18th century the various portions of the church were partitioned off; the choir was used as the high kirk and the south transept as the old kirk, and two other congregations also worshipped within the building; the nave, at the same time, was constituted an assembly hall, and the north transept became a court house and police office. During the year 1829 a sum of £20,000 was expended in repairs and alterations, under the superintendence of Mr. Burn, architect, some of which were of a purely destructive character; but the real restoration, stimulated by the munificence of Dr. William Chambers, was begun in 1872, under the direction of Messrs. Hay and Henderson, architects, in the course of which all the various partitions were removed, the nave piers renewed, and a new west doorway erected, superseding and incorporating that created by Mr. Burn; the galleries and pews were wholly removed, the piers they concealed or defaced were carefully repaired, and the old fittings and furniture taken away: the work was extended in 1879 to the south side of the church and included the thorough renovation of the Preston, Moray and Chepman aisles: the east window, presented by Sir James Falshaw bart. (Lord Provost 1874-7), and others in the choir are stained: the reredos of stone consists of a series of triangular-headed canopied niches, flanked by and alternating with crocketed pinnacles; below it is a range of seven stalls for the minister and royal chaplains, and fronting these stands the communion table: the pulpit, which stands in the choir, is of Caen stone, exquisitely carved, and was executed by Mr. John Rhind, sculptor, of Edinburgh: the royal sittings in the Preston aisle have been entirely renewed and include a canopied throne for the sovereign, with five stalls on either side, and in front and below is a range of ten stalls for the suite; the throne is of oak, panelled and finely carved and adorned at the back with the royal arms of Scotland and supporters; the canopy, 14 feet in height, is polygonal, elaborately groined and ornamented with pinnacles supporting cusped arches; the desk in front of the throne is also of oak, elaborately wrought and relieved with open tracery, and the whole is raised on a dais, 32 feet long by 8½ feet wide, and 4 feet above the level of the floor: the large window behind the royal pew is now (1896) being filled with stained glass, as a commemorative window to those noblemen who have held the office of Lord High Commissioner to the General Assembly during the reign of Her Majesty: the window consists of ten lights with tracery above and the upper portion has already been filled in with the arms of the respective peers; these at present include John, 2nd Marquess of Bute, who held office in the memorable year of the secession of the Free church, which took place 18 May, 1843; he died 18 March, 1848; Robert, Lord Belhaven and Stenton K.T. d. 22 Dec. 1868; David, 7th Earl of Airlie K.T. (High Commissioner 1872-3), d. 25 Sept. 1881; John, 7th Earl of Aberdeen G.C.M.G., P.C., F.S.A. (High Commissioner 1881-5); John Adrian, 7th Earl of Hopetoun G.C.M.G., P.C. (High Commissioner 1887-9); and Gavin, 1st Marquess of Breadalbane K.G., P.C. (High Commissioner 1893-4): these blazons of arms were contributed by the peers themselves or their representatives, save in the case of Lord Belhaven, whose achievement was placed at the cost of the Marquesses of Bute and Breadalbane, Sir John Watson bart. of Earnock and R. K. Inches esq.: the Chepman aisle is now used as a baptistery, and contains a font of Caen stone, executed by Rhind, after a model by Thorwaldsen, at Copenhagen, and presented by the Very Rev. J. Cameron Lees D.D.: the organ is placed in the south transept: there are aumbries at the east end of both aisles of the choir, and in the wall of the north aisle an arched recess; in the same bay, but on the outside, is a monument to John Napier, Baron of Merchistoun, the inventor of logarithms, d. 3 April, 1617: on the east wall of the Chepman aisle is the splendid monument, erected about 1890, at a cost of £1,000, defrayed chiefly by the clan Graham, to James Graham, 1st Marquess of Montrose, the distinguished Royalist Captain General in Scotland during the Civil war; he was executed at Edinburgh 21 May, 1650, but his remains, buried under the gallows, were here re-interred in state by Charles II. in 1661; the monument, designed in the Renaissance style by Dr. Rowland Anderson, architect, and 16 feet in height by 9 wide, consists of a deeply recessed arch, enclosing an altar tomb, on which lies a recumbent effigy of the marquess in white marble; the work was executed by Mr. Rhind: at the east end of the Preston aisle is a mural tablet to the Rt. Hon. John Inglis, of Glencorse, Lord Justice General and Lord President of the Court of Session, d. 20 Aug. 1891, and in the Moray aisle is a monument to James Stewart, Earl of Moray and Regent of Scotland, assassinated at Linlithgow 21 Jan. 1569-70; and a flat pointed recessed arch, enriched with cusps and crocketing, and perhaps once a shrine: in the Albany aisle is another arched recess. The Argyll chapel at the west end formerly belonged to the Guild of Hammermen of the city, and the arms of the Guild still remain in the centre of the floor: on the west side of the chapel is now placed a handsome monument of white and coloured marbles, erected as a memorial to Archibald, 8th Earl and 1st Marquess of Argyll, who was beheaded at the Market cross, near the cathedral, 27 May, 1661: the monument includes a recumbent effigy of the marquess in white alabaster, one hand being placed on the breast, and holding a sword, with a blade of fine steel and a richly gilt handle; two large jasper stones and numerous agates used in the ornamental portions of the work were collected by H.R.H. the Princess Louise, Marchioness of Lorne, during a stay at Oban, and there are also inscriptions. The Chambers' chapel, also on the west, contains a brass to William Chambers, of Glenmoriston LL.D. lord provost of Edinburgh 1865-9, and who, as previously stated, was the chief contributor to the restoration of the cathedral; here also are two stained windows, one of which is a memorial to William and Robert Chambers. The cathedral has been the scene of several occurrences of historical interest; here John Knox preached, and in 1572 was buried in the cemetery then adjoining; the spot, now in the road on the south side, is indicated by a plate of metal bearing the initials "J.K."; here also James VI. took leave of his Scottish subjects on his accession to the throne of England, and it was within the cathedral, 23 July, 1637, that Jenny Geddes hurled her stool at the dean, on his attempting to read the English liturgy: Charles I. frequently attended service here, and in 1822 George IV. on his visit to the city, Aug. 25, occupied the royal pew: the cathedral is somewhat over 200 feet in length, the width being about 76 feet, or through the transepts 129 feet; the external appearance, owing largely to the squat pinnacles and low roofs, is heavy and sombre, and is only relieved by the open work of the spire, which, especially in the distance, has a fine effect.

New and Old Greyfriars Churches.—The Old Greyfriars Church, which is situated not far from the Grassmarket, was founded in the year 1612, on the site of a monastery of the Franciscans or Greyfriars: in 1650 the interior of the church was burned by Cromwell's soldiers, and on 7th May, 1718, the spire, which was used as a powder magazine, was unfortunately destroyed by an explosion. New Greyfriars Church was built by the magistrates at the western end of the old one in 1721, at an expense of £3,045. The original or Old church was in 1845 burnt, in consequence of the overheating of a flue, and rebuilt in the same style as the annexed New Greyfriars church, both standing in a large graveyard made from the garden of the old monastery. It was in Old Greyfriars church, and in the churchyard adjacent, that the National Covenant was signed in 1638.

The Tron Church, so called from a tron or weighing machine which at one time stood near it, and to which, in former times, it was customary to nail false notaries and other malefactors by the ears, is situated in the High street, at the corner of South Bridge street. An inscription on the doorway states that it was formerly called Christ Church, and consecrated in 1647. The original steeple was destroyed by fire in 1824, and the present ornamental one was erected in 1828. The front towards the High street consists of a lofty tower and octagonal steeple flanked by two flatheaded doorways, surmounted by windows in the Decorated style, and in the base of the tower a centre doorway with buttresses marking the tower angles, there being also four more buttresses, two on each side, beyond the windows.

Lady Yester's Church, in Infirmary street, was originally founded in 1647, principally by Margaret Kerr, Lady Yester, but it was taken down in 1803, and the present elegant Gothic building was erected on its site.

Canongate Church is the church of the parish of that name, and is a Gothic building in the form of a cross, founded in 1688: it was built at an expense of £2,400, from a legacy left by Thomas Moodie, a citizen of Edinburgh. Many notable persons are buried in the churchyard—Adam Smith, Dugald Stewart, and Ferguson, the poet, among the number.

St. Cuthbert's Parish Church, or the West Kirk, situated near the base of the rock on which the castle stands, was built in 1775, and is the mother church of the extensive parish of St. Cuthbert. It was taken down and the present church on the same site was erected in 1892-3, and opened in 1894. It is in the Renaissance style with two square towers at the east end: the old tower at the west end, built in 1755, still remains. There are several stained windows presented by the ministers and members of the congregation, and a bronze lectern, with the figure of an angel, presented in 1895, by Mr. Alex. Bannatyne. It is seated for 2,400. The burial ground is spacious, and many of the monuments are costly. St. Cuthbert's hall, adjoining the church, was built in 1894, on the site of the old manse; it contains a large hall for 800 persons, and is used as a Sunday school, and let for concerts and bazaars. In connection with the hall is the St. Cuthbert's Young Men's Christian Association, which possess a library of over 1,400 volumes.

St. Andrew's Church, standing on the north side of George street, in the New Town, is surmounted with a fine tapering spire, 168 feet high, in which is a chime of 8 bells. The church, which is an oval, has an historical celebrity, as the scene of the disruption of the Church of Scotland, which took place at the meeting of the General Assembly on the 18th May, 1843. It contains a fine organ.

St. George's Church, on the west side of Charlotte square, forms the terminating object of George street, the dome, seen to advantage in almost every direction, being intended as a miniature representation of that of St. Paul's, London. The building, erected in 1814, cost £33,000, and is calculated to seat 1,600 persons.

St. Mary's Church, in Bellevue crescent, erected in 1824, at a cost of £14,000, has a Corinthian portico and an elegant spire 186 feet high. The church will seat 1,300 persons.

St. Stephen's Church, in St. Vincent street, is in the mixed Roman style, its shape octagonal, with a tower 163 feet high, and was erected in 1828 at a cost of £25,000: it seats 1,600 persons.

Trinity College Church, on the south side of Jeffrey street, was built in 1871-2, in the Norman Transitional style, after designs by Lessells. It has a tower and spire 115 feet high, and north of it is a Gothic church which is a reconstruction of the old Holy Trinity church at the foot of Leith wynd, founded in 1462 by Mary of Gueldres, and having to be taken down to enlarge the railway station, its stones were numbered and the church re-erected as above.

St. John's, Victoria street, was built in 1819 by the Town Council at the instance of the Rev. Thomas Chalmers, who subsequently organized the Free Church movement.

The Assembly Hall of the Established Church, also called the Victoria Hall or Victoria Church, was built in 1844, and cost £16,000. It is a stone oblong structure in the Decorated style, and resembles the nave of a church, being of 5 bays with an eastern tower containing a porch set in between the buttresses, with a large window above it, the next stages of the tower being octagonal and finished by a lofty and extremely beautiful spire. It occupies a commanding situation on the Castle Hill, fronting the Lawnmarket, and is the place of meeting of the General Assembly.

Scottish Episcopal Church.

This community possesses many places of worship in Edinburgh, several of which are very fine buildings. The service is conducted after the ritual of the Church of England. Scotland is divided by this body into seven dioceses, over which preside the same number of bishops. The clergy are mainly supported from the produce of the pew rents.

St. Mary's Cathedral, Manor place, the seat of the Bishop of Edinburgh, is a building of stone in the Early English style, designed by the late Sir Gilbert Scott. The plan consists of a chancel of four bays, with north and south aisles, transepts with eastern and western aisles, and nave, with north and south aisles terminating in towers (incomplete) at the west; the central tower and spire are 290 feet in height, and contains 10 bells: adjoining the north aisle of the chancel is a fine library. Excepting the great rose windows in nave and transept gables, the windows are all of lancet form, and the general character of the building is simple and massive, though rich in detail: the chief portal at the west end of the nave and that in the south transept are very elaborately treated. Internally the length is 278 feet, and the breadth (taken across the nave and aisles) 76 feet, and the aisles throughout, as well as the central crossing and choir, are vaulted in stone and concrete. The vaulting at the east end of the choir is remarkable as springing (as in an apse) from between the three equal lancets of the great west window. The nave and transepts are vaulted in oak with richly moulded ribs and carved bosses; and in these parts of the church the triforium is open, but in the choir it is closed. The choir is continued to the western piers of the central tower, and divided from the nave by a low screen of marble and mosaic. The reredos is of alabaster, containing a marble group representing the Crucifixion (by Miss Grant). The font (under the south-west tower) is of alabaster. The organ (four manuals, by Willis) stands in the north transept. There are a number of stained memorial windows. The cathedral is seated for 2,000, about three-fourths of the seats being free. The funds for the erection of this noble building were derived from a bequest of two ladies, the late Misses Walker, of Coates. The foundation stone was laid by the late Duke of Buccleuch, on the 21st of May, 1874, and the opening ceremonial took place in October, 1879. The cost of the building, so far as it has gone, is stated to be £110,000. The establishment consists of a dean, a chancellor, five canons and five chaplains; the bishop appoints the dean and one canon, the clergy of the diocese appoint two others and the remaining two stalls are held ex-officio by the Synod Clerk and the principal of the Theological College; the dean and sub-dean appoint the chaplains.

All Saints, Broughton street, a building of the 13th century Gothic style, was erected in 1867. It has clerestoried nave with one aisle, bell turret, and narthex of two storeys, the lower serving as a vestibule, the upper opening into the nave after the manner of a triforium, and used as a chapel; transepts, chancel of equal height with nave, and terminating in an apse. The principal roofs are barrel-vaulted internally. The altar-piece, designed by Burgess, representing the Annunciation, has been removed to a side chapel and a new reredos has been erected: the church will seat 600. Patrons, the Vestry.

Christ Church, Morningside, is of 13th century style of French Gothic, built in 1876, has wide nave with walls internally low, with transept of one bay. The roofs are open to the ridge, and, in common with the interior, are rather profusely decorated; there is a tower and spire north-east of north transept, serving as entrance and organ chamber, and a narrow and lofty chancel, ending in polygonal apse, with processional aisle. The chancel roof is groined in wood, the walls adorned with rich diapering carved in the stone, and elsewhere relieved with colour, while a series of fine designs in stained glass fill the clerestory windows of the apse, the whole forming a memorial: under the nave there is a large hall used for congregational purposes.

St. John the Evangelist, west end of Princes street, is in the Perpendicular Gothic style, and has apsidal chancel, nave with aisles and a western tower: the eastern window is stained, as are also those in the clerestory. It was built in 1818 at a cost of £1,500.

Old St. Paul's, Jeffrey street. The old church was used as an Episcopal chapel in 1688, and was once the only Episcopal church within the ancient city walls, but this has been taken down and the present church erected on the same site, and opened by the Bishop of Edinburgh on the 27th January, 1883. The style is Gothic, and is seated for 300.

St. Paul's, York place, is also Gothic, with four octagonal towers at its angles, and has a short chancel, added in 1891, and eight stained windows: it has buttresses surmounted with pinnacles, and occupies a conspicuous situation at the corner of York place and Broughton street. In one of its four turrets hangs a bell formerly used in the Chapel Royal of Holyrood. It was built in 1818 at a cost of £12,000, and restored in 1891, and is seated for 1,200.

St. Peter's, Lutton place, Newington, built in 1859, is in the Early Decorated style, and has nave with aisles, narthex and detached octagonal baptistery, tower and spire, and an apsidal chancel, with aisles serving as organ chamber and vestry. It is seated for 500.

St. Thomas's, Rutland place, is in the Norman style, built in 1882. and is seated for 700.

Holy Trinity, Dean bridge, is a fine building, erected in 1838, and is seated for 590.

St. Columba, Johnston terrace, built in 1846, is in the Early English style, has a nave, a chancel, with a sacristy on the south side and a gallery at west end over porch and vestry. A large portion of the stones of which the walls are built was taken from the ruins of the chapel in the palace of Queen Mary of Guise, on Castle hill: it is seated for 300.

St. Andrew, south back of Canongate, is in the Norman style, built in 1857, and enlarged in 1874. Further improvements were made, and a memorial window to David Anderson, of Moredun, placed in the chancel in 1884: it is seated for 550.

Free Church of Scotland.

This, which is the largest of the non-established churches of Scotland, founded in 1843, holds the meetings of its General Assembly in Edinburgh annually, at the same time with that of the Established Church. These meetings take place in a hall erected for the purpose, and capable of containing from 1,600 to 1,800 persons. This hall was built in 1858-9 and is situated behind the Free Church College, the principal entrance to it being through the college quadrangle.

The Free Church has also theological seminaries in Glasgow and Aberdeen. It has about forty places of worship in Edinburgh, some of which are St. George's, Shandwick place, St. Mary's, at the corner of Albany street and Broughton street, Barclay Church in Bruntsfield links, and Buccleuch Church, near George square, St. John's, near the Victoria Hall, and New North Church, near the Greyfriars churches.

The Chalmers' Memorial Church, Grange road, was erected in memory of the celebrated Rev. Thomas Chalmers, who at first, 1815, was minister of the Tron church and afterwards of St. John's, Victoria street, which the Town Council built for him. In 1843 he was a chief organizer of the Free Church body, became the first moderator of their assembly and when he died in 1847 was principal of the Free Church College.

The Guthrie Memorial Church, Easter road, was established to commemorate the work of the Rev. Thomas Guthrie D.D. originally pastor of the Old Greyfriars' Church, but became a leader of the Free Church movement and minister of St. John's, 1840, from which he retired 1864; he likewise was the promoter of the Ragged School system, and died February 24th, 1873: a stone font supported on clustered columns was presented in October, 1895.

United Presbyterian Church.

This body of Presbyterian Dissenters has many places of worship in Edinburgh, some of them large.

Nicolson Street Church is on the west side of Nicolson street, and has a lofty Gothic front with a fine Saxon arch. For many years Dr. Jamieson, the compiler of the "Scottish Dictionary," was the minister of this numerous congregation.

Broughton Place Church is a massive building, with a portico and Doric columns; it will contain 1,600 worshippers.

Rose Street Church is a capacious building, in the eastern division of Rose street.

Newington Church is in Causeway side.

The United Presbyterian College is in Castle terrace; the library contains upwards of 33,000 volumes.

The United Presbyterian Church holds a meeting of synod annually in Edinburgh, on the Monday after the first Sunday in May. The meetings are held in the College buildings, Castle terrace.

Roman Catholic.

The province of St. Andrews and Edinburgh consists of the archiepiscopal see of St. Andrew and Edinburgh and the four suffragan sees of Aberdeen, Argyll and the Isles, Dunkeld and Galloway. The archdiocese of St. Andrew and Edinburgh comprises the counties of Edinburgh, Berwick, southern parts of Fife (bounded by the Eden), Haddington, Linlithgow, Peebles, Roxburghshire, Selkirk and Stirling (except Baldernock).

St. Mary's, the cathedral, occupies a site near York place, in Broughton street; it is a handsome stone edifice in the Gothic style, built by subscription in 1813, and costing £8,000. It has a very fine organ; and above the altar is an excellent painting by Vandyke representing "Our Saviour's Descent from the Cross." The alterations in progress for some few years past have resulted in the addition of new porch at the east end and a chancel of three bays, with apse and north and south aisles at the western end, in which the altar, the carved oak archiepiscopal throne and canons' stalls have been re-erected, and the nine clerestory windows are to be fitted with stained glass; the roof is hammer-beam springing from stone corbels, and the other new work consists of choir gallery under the east window (now opened out by the removal of the organ), an octagonal baptistery and a new side chapel adjoining the north aisle. The new work is from the designs of Messrs. Buchanan and Bennett, 24 George street. The dedication took place on the 30th November, 1895, Pontifical High Mass being celebrated by Archbishop Macdonald and the dedication sermon preached by Bishop MacGuire, Glasgow.

St. Patrick's Church is in Cowgate: and a larger one, called the Church of the Sacred Heart, a fine building, lighted by cupolas, is situated in Lauriston street.

Baptists, Congregationalists, &c.

There are five Baptist churches in Edinburgh. One place of worship, in Dublin street, is a beautiful building. There are seven Congregationalist churches, but the only places of worship of any external beauty is Augustine Chapel, on George IV. bridge.

The Catholic Apostolic Church, at the corner of Bellevue place, was opened in 1876. It is in the Later Norman style, measures 200 feet in length, 45 feet in height to the wall head, and 64 feet in height to the apex of the internal roof vault; and comprises a nave, a chancel, a west end tower, and a baptistery. The cost was about £35,000. The places of worship of minor Protestant denominations do not require special notice.

For full list of places of worship with their clergy see p. 424-6.

CEMETERIES.

The Edinburgh cemeteries are five in number. On the south is the cemetery of the Grange, on the west that of Dalry, on the north-west that of Dean, on the north that of Warriston, and on the north-east that of Rosebank. In the Dean cemetery is a runic cross marking the grave of Professor Blackie, d. 1895.

The Roman Catholics established a cemetery at Liberton, May, 1896.

In Greyfriars' churchyard were interred, among many other eminent persons, George Buchanan, Sir George Mackenzie, Alexander Henderson (the leader of the Scottish Presbyterians in 1638 and following years), Colin Maclaurin, Allan Ramsay, Adam, the architect, Robertson, the historian, and Blair, whose sermons were once so popular. In this churchyard many Covenanters, chiefly from the west of Scotland, were kept prisoners for some time in 1679, with no lodging but the bare ground and no shelter from the weather. Some were set free, others were banished as slaves to the plantations.

EDUCATIONAL.

For the University of Edinburgh see page xix.

The Royal High School of Edinburgh, Calton hill. The date of the foundation of this school is unknown, but it appears to have existed as early as the beginning of the twelfth century. From that time to the Reformation, "the Grammar School of Edinburgh," as it was then called, was under the control of the canons of Holyrood. In 1598 it was remodelled on a more comprehensive plan, and from the patronage vouchsafed to it by James VI., it received the name of Schola Regia Edinburgensis. Although at first a classical seminary, it now furnishes systematic instruction in all the departments of a commercial as well as a liberal education. The English language and literature form prominent part of the system; while the entire curriculum of study—which occupies nine years—embraces languages, history, geography, chemistry and physiology, with writing, book-keeping, arithmetic, algebra and geometery, athletics and military drill. There is a library containing nearly 7,000 volumes to which all the pupils have access, and also a special lending library of books suitable for boys, and the school is equipped with chemical and physical laboratories and workshops. The school buildings were originally in the Old Town, near the site of the old infirmary and rebuilt on nearly the same spot in 1777, but as this situation became unsuitable and the accommodation inadequate, the present structure was built in 1825, on the south slope of the Calton hill. This edifice, which cost £30,000, was designed by the late Thomas Hamilton, architect, and completed in 1829. The main building, 270 feet in length, has a magnificent hexastyle Doric portico in the centre, which is united to the wings by two corridors, the entablatures of which are supported by twelve columns, also of the Doric order. To this building, which had grown inadequate, one of nearly equal extent has been added, and in this are a suite of rooms for the preparatory school, chemical laboratory and lecture room, gymnasium, swimming bath, drawing room, rector's and other class rooms. Workshops for wood and iron have also been added, as well as a dining room in which the rector and masters dine with the boys daily. The playground, a portion of which is roofed over, is spacious, extending to nearly two acres, and commands a picturesque view of the ancient city and surrounding country.

The Edinburgh Academy, Henderson row, established in 1824, and incorporated by royal charter from George IV. is a handsome building, after a design by Mr. Burn, and cost £16,000. The academy is under the superintendence of a board of fifteen directors, three of whom are elected annually from the body of shareholders; it consists of two departments, a preparatory and upper school. The former, opened for the first time in October, 1888, takes boys from five or six to nine or ten; and the latter continue their education till eighteen or nineteen. The upper school is divided into two parts—a classical school and a modern school. The course prepares boys for the universities in England and Scotland, for business life, for Sandhurst, Woolwich, and for the Indian Civil Service. In the modern school, boys who ultimately choose this school for the first three classes are not marked off from the class to which they belong, except in one subject. They are not required to learn Greek in the third class, but may substitute any other subject in which they wish special instruction. A large gymnasium and scientific laboratory were built in 1890 and six new schoolrooms since 1892. Besides a playground of three acres, in the centre of which it stands, it has a cricke ground of nine acres, its own property, within a shor-distance of the school for the exclusive use of present and former pupils. In addition to this a second field of nine acres has been acquired for recreation.

The Free Church College, a theological seminary, stands at the head of the Mound, and is a very beautiful edifice, in the Elizabethan style, designed by Mr. Playfair, instituted in 1843, and consisting of a quadrangle, 84 feet by 56, with two centre towers 121 feet in height, and a tower at the north-east corner 95 feet in height. On the 22nd May, 1896, a statue of John Knox, the reformer (1505-72), which has been placed in the quadrangle of this college, was unveiled and handed over to the keeping of the moderator of the Free Church Assembly. The college has a staff of six theological professors, including a professor of natural science. The library was founded in 1843, and was removed to the present building in 1850. It contains about 45,000 volumes, mainly theological.

The Theological College of the Scottish Episcopal Church, Coates hall, Rosebery crescent, had its origin in the pious benefaction of Catherine Panton, residing near Fraserburgh, in the county of Aberdeen, which was entrusted in the year 1810 to the bishops of the Scottish Church, for the purpose of "erecting and endowing a seminary of learning, or theological institution, for the education of young men desirous to serve in the sacred ministry of the Scottish Episcopal Communion."

The United Presbyterian College, Hall and Library are in Castle terrace; the library contains upwards of 21,000 volumes.

The Edinburgh Merchant Company Schools.—(1) The Edinburgh Ladies' College, 70, 72 and 73 Queen street. This institution was founded in 1695 by the Company of Merchants and Mary Erskine, widow of James Hair, druggist in Edinburgh, as an hospital for girls, and was known as the Merchant Maiden Hospital. The governors were incorporated by an Act of Parliament in 1707. The original edifice was situated in Bristo street; but having become insufficient for its purpose, another building was begun in Lauriston in 1816, from designs by Mr. Burn, and completed in 1818, at a cost of £12,250. Up to 1870 this building continued to be used as an hospital, for the board and education of the foundationers, but in September, 1870, it was converted, under a provisional order, into a day school. The buildings having been sold to the governors of George Watson's Hospital, an extensive structure in Queen street was acquired and opened in October, 1871. The institution provides a high-class education, with drill, gymnastics, needlework and cookery. The governors had the right of presenting thirty-four foundationers to the hospital, but by an amending provisional order, obtained in 1888, that number is reduced to twenty, and in addition the governors elect twenty-one foundationers by competitive examination from among the girls attending the day schools of the Merchant Maiden Hospital. Girls attending the institution may obtain, by competition (1) a presentation to the foundation; and (2) a bursary on leaving the institution of £25 a year, and tenable for four years, equal to £100. Besides the above benefits, a large number of school bursaries is awarded at the end of each session, equal in value to the cost of the successful competitor's class fees for the following year. There are also awarded to pupils attending the institution, bursaries in connection with the Edinburgh School of Cookery and Domestic Economy. The foundationers are, under the supervision of the governors, boarded with families in Edinburgh. When admitted to the foundation, the girls must be of the age of nine and under that of sixteen years. A number of the presentations was formerly limited to the daughters or granddaughters of such as were of the order or calling of merchant burgesses of Edinburgh, or ministers thereof, or suburbs of the same, or had been benefactors to the hospital or governors of the same; but the provisional order removes this limitation, and declares that the patrons shall be at full liberty to present such girls as they consider most suitable. On leaving, foundationers, by ordinary election and presentees, receive £9 6s. 8d. each, with the exception of the Earl of Mar's presentees, who receive £14 6s. 8d. each.

(2) George Watson's College Schools (college for boys), Lauriston.—George Watson, born in Edinburgh about 1650, served an apprenticeship to a merchant in the city, and after a short residence in Holland, entered into the service of Sir James Dicks, a wealthy trader in Edinburgh, and this employment he relinquished in 1695, on being appointed accountant to the Bank of Scotland. He died in April, 1723, and by his will bequeathed £12,000 to endow an hospital for the maintenance and instruction of the male children and grandchildren of decayed merchants in Edinburgh; and by the statutes of his trustees a preference was given to the sons and grandsons of members of the Edinburgh Merchant Company. An hospital for the board and education of the foundationers was founded in the year 1738, and opened in June, 1741, and it continued to be used for this purpose until 1870, when the governors of the four hospitals connected with the Merchant Company, taking advantage of the powers given by the Endowed Institutions (Scotland) Act, obtained powers to convert the hospitals into day schools, and they were opened as such in September, 1870. This building was, however, sold to the Corporation of the Royal Infirmary in 1871, and that formerly called the Merchant Maiden Hospital was acquired for and is now being occupied as George Watson's College for Boys. The object is to provide boys with a liberal education, qualifying them for commercial or professional life, the civil service, the universities &c. The foundationers have been reduced to 60, and under the amending order of 1888 at least one-fourth of these shall be elected by competitive examination. Boys attending the college may obtain, by competition, the following benefits, viz.: (1) A presentation to one of the foundations of this college; and (2) a bursary on leaving the schools of £25 a year, and tenable for four years, equal to £100. Besides the above benefits, a large number of school bursaries is awarded at the end of each session, equal in value to the cost of the successful competitor's class fees for the following year. Under the order of 1888, the governors have power to found three open fellowships of the value of £100 yearly, tenable for any period not exceeding three years, to aid students of promise and merit in the prosecution of their professional studies in any department of science, art, or literature, whether in this country or abroad, and who have attended at least two sessions at Edinburgh University, and such fellowships shall be granted upon a competitive examination. The foundationers are, under the supervision of the governors, boarded in families in Edinburgh. When admitted as foundationers, they must be of the age of nine and under that of fourteen years. On leaving, each foundationer, by favour, is allowed £7 for clothes; he may receive for five years of an apprenticeship £10 annually; and on attaining the age of twenty-five a further sum of £50 to enable him to commence business in Edinburgh.

(3) George Watson's College for Ladies.—The governors have also, in virtue of power given them in the provisional order of 1870, established a school for girls called George Watson's College for Ladies. The school buildings were in 1876 largely added to and improved. The course of study is the same as that of the Edinburgh Ladies' College (see before), and girls attending the school have, under an amending order obtained in 1888, similar benefits open for their competition.

(4) Daniel Stewart's College for Boys, Queensferry road, Dean.—Daniel Stewart, of the Exchequer, who died in 1814, left the residue of his property, amounting (after the erection and endowment of a free school in his native parish of Logierait) to upwards of £13,000, to accumulate for the purpose of building and endowing an hospital for the maintenance and education of deserving boys, the children of honest and industrious parents, whose circumstances in life do not enable them suitably to support and educate their children at other schools. Taking advantage of the power given by a provisional order obtained in 1870, the hospital was opened as a day school in September of that year. The institution now known as Daniel Stewart's College provides boys with a superior education at moderate fees, qualifying them for commercial or professional life, civil service and the universities. In 1894 a spacious gymnasium fully equipped with the most approved apparatus was added to the building. The provisional order directed the number of foundations to be reduced to forty, and under the amending order of 1888 at least one-half of them shall be elected, by competitive examination, from the day scholars of this institution. Boys attending have valuable benefits open for their competition. On admission to the foundation boys must be of the age of nine and under that of fourteen years. The master, treasurer and assistants of the Merchant Company of Edinburgh are the governors of the college.

(5) James Gillespie's Schools for Boys and Girls, Gillespie crescent, was founded by James Gillespie, of Spylaw, merchant and tobacconist in Edinburgh, who, by his will, dated in the year 1796, bequeathed the greater part of his property for the endowment of a charitable school, and of an hospital for aliment and maintenance of old men and women. The edifice, which was designed by Mr. Burn, was founded in 1801, and opened in 1802. The free school was founded in 1801, and opened in 1803. Up to 1870, the hospital continued to be occupied by old persons, of whom about 40 were maintained in it, but in that year the governors obtained a provisional order empowering them to convert the hospital into day schools, and it was opened as such in 1870. The schools are established as primary schools. The girls are also taught sewing, knitting, cutting out, the sewing machine and domestic economy, and arrangements have been made by which the senior girls may obtain practical lessons in cookery. Under an amending order, obtained in 1888, power is continued to the governors to grant forty school bursaries at the end of each session, equal in value to the cost of the successful competitor's class fees for the following year; and to establish twelve higher school bursaries of a value not exceeding £10 each yearly, tenable for a period not exceeding three years, to enable promising pupils to attend at the higher class schools of the Company; such pupils receiving in addition free education at these schools. Those entitled to the benefits of the hospital as aged foundationers are persons not under 55 years of age, first, of the names of Gillespie, whatever part of Scotland they may come from; and, second, persons belonging to Edinburgh and its suburbs; failing these, persons from Leith, Newhaven, and other parts of Midlothian; whom failing, persons from any other part of Scotland. By the provisional order of 1870 the governors have power, instead of maintaining the foundationers in the then present or any other building, to allow them a pension of not less than £10 and not exceeding £25 a year.

The Royal (Dick's) Veterinary College, Clyde street, was founded by the late Professor Dick in 1823. Previous to that date, no institution devoted to the teaching of veterinary science existed in Scotland; nor was any veterinary degree obtainable in Great Britain or Ireland. In the year mentioned, the Highland and Agricultural Society of Scotland came to an agreement with Professor Dick, under which the present institution was founded. The undertaking was from the outset attended with marked success; the number of students rapidly increased, and in the year 1827 a Board of Examiners was appointed. An agreement was some years ago concluded between the Highland and Agricultural Society of Scotland and the Royal College of Veterinary Surgeons under which the examinations hitherto held by the Society are discontinued; consequently, only one degree in veterinary medicine and surgery is now obtainable in Great Britain and Ireland, viz.: the diploma of the Royal College of Veterinary Surgeons incorporated in the year 1844, and under this charter of incorporation Professor Dick's college was affiliated to it. In 1866 Professor Dick died, having achieved more than any other single individual towards rescuing from obscurity the position of veterinary science in this country, and at his death he endowed the Royal Veterinary College which now bears his name. It is the only endowed veterinary school in Great Britain.

The New Veterinary College, in Leith walk, has been erected specially for the education of veterinary students. It contains lecture, reading and waiting rooms &c. and is provided with horse boxes and dog kennels.

George Heriot's Trust.—George Heriot, who came of an old East Lothian family, the Heriots of Traboun, was born at Edinburgh about the year 1563. He followed his father's trade of a goldsmith, and in 1597 was appointed goldsmith to Anne of Denmark, the queen of James VI. Shortly afterwards he was nominated jeweller and goldsmith to the king; and when the Court was removed to London, in 1603, Heriot followed in its train. During his residence in London he lost both his wives and all his children, and he himself died there February 12, 1624, having, by a will dated in the previous year, bequeathed the residue of his property, amounting to £23,625, for the erection of an hospital, "for the mainetenance, releife, bringing upp, and education of poore fatherlesse boyes, freemen's sonnes of the towne of Edinburgh." The foundation stone of George Heriot's Hospital, Lauriston, was laid July 1, 1628, but, owing to the civil war and other causes, the building was not opened till April 11, 1659. The expense of the erection exceeded £30,000. The original trustees of Heriot's endowment were the Lord Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council, and the city ministers of Edinburgh; and by them and their successors in office the trust continued to be administered till August, 1885. At that date the Endowed Schools (Scotland) Commissioners issued a scheme by which the governing body was reconstituted, and the number of its members reduced from fifty-four to twenty-one, of whom twelve are appointed by the Town Council (one of these must be elected from among the ministers of religion officiating in Edinburgh, not being members of the Established Church of Scotland), three by the School Board of Edinburgh, two by the city ministers of Edinburgh, two by the Senatus of the University of Edinburgh, one by the Royal Society of Edinburgh, and one by the Edinburgh Chamber of Commerce. Besides altering the composition and number of the governing body, the scheme also made considerable changes in the mode of applying the income of the trust; and the main objects to which this is now to be devoted may be summarised as follows:—(1) The establishment of a day school within the buildings of Heriot's Hospital, to be called George Heriot's Hospital School, and which shall be open to fee-paying as well as free pupils. (2) The maintenance and extension of the Watt Institution as a Technical College—to be known as the Heriot-Watt College—for "providing technical and general education for the industrial classes, of both sexes, on a scale suitable to the great and increasing wants of these classes." (3) The foundation of bursaries for the promotion of secondary and higher education, which are tenable at George Heriot's Hospital School, the High School, the Heriot-Watt College, St. George's Training College, and the University; and (4) the expenditure of an annual sum for providing free education, books &c. for poor children attending public or state-aided schools in Edinburgh.

Heriot-Watt College, Chambers street.—This institution, the annual provision for which is to be not less than £4,000, is mainly intended to give thorough scientific instruction, at moderate fees, to students in attendance at evening classes. Day classes for higher technical training were established in the College in 1888. In the bursary system established in connection with the Heriot-Watt College are included bursaries for (1) "covering the cost of education and books" of students requiring aid in attending the evening classes; and (2) assisting students to carry on their education in the day technical department, or in the University of Edinburgh. There are at present over 3,000 male and female students in attendance at the evening classes.

The Fettes College and Endowment are due to the bequest of Sir William Fettes bart. of Comely Bank, who was born in 1750, and died in 1836. The administration of the endowment is now in the hands of the governors of the Fettes Trust, acting under the scheme of the Educational Endowment (Scotland) Commission, dated April 3rd, 1886. At present fifty foundationers (children of parents who are from innocent misfortune, during their own lives, unable to give suitable education to their children, or who have died without leaving sufficient funds for that purpose) are maintained and educated at the college free of charge. Vacancies are filled up by the governors once a year. Non-foundationers are received as at other public schools, and for their accommodation there are four boarding-houses, which are situated within the college grounds, and under the charge of the college masters. The instruction includes all the branches of a liberal education of the highest class, and is intended to qualify for the universities and for professional life.

The Edinburgh School Board has offices in the Italian style, the principal elevation being to Castle terrace. On the street floor are placed the public offices, and the compulsory department enters from Cornwall street, and embraces room for the chief compulsory officer. On the first floor, overlooking Castle terrace, is the board room, 33 feet by 23 feet, exclusive of the large oriel window, having, on the one side, an ante-room, which may be used as a waiting-room, and, on the other, the room appropriated for the use of the clerk of the Board. The building was designed by Mr. Robert Wilson, architect to the Board, the estimated cost being about £10,000.

PUBLIC BUILDINGS.

The Mint of Scotland.—In the lane called Gray's close stand the buildings formerly occupied by the Mint of Scotland. They were erected in 1574, but no money has been coined there since the union of the two kingdoms. The first coin seems to have been struck in Scotland in the time of Alexander I., who commenced his reign in 1107. These coins were thin pieces of silver called pennies, and this was the silver coin in use until the reign of Queen Mary, who introduced reals, or royals, afterwards called crowns. The oldest gold coin bears the name of Robert, but whether of Robert I. is not fully ascertained. James V., in his bonnet pieces, contracted the surface and increased the thickness of the coinage. The general names for gold coins in Scotland were florins or nobles, and lions. When copper was first coined in Scotland is uncertain; James III., however, in 1466, procured an act from his first parliament for coining copper money, four to the penny. Pennies, worth one-twelfth of an English penny, were coined by James VI., and twopenny pieces, or bawbees, after the Restoration. To the prince formerly belonged the exclusive right of coining money and all mines of gold and silver; but coinage was not confined to the capital, and many coins bear the name of Aberdeen, Perth, Stirling, Dundee, Linlithgow, Roxburgh, Berwick, and Dumbarton. The principal instrument used in coining before the Restoration (when the mill and screw were introduced) were a hammer and steel dies. It is conjectured that the sum of money in circulation at the Union amounted to upwards of £900,000 sterling.

The Parliament House, erected 1640, to take the place of the old Parliament Hall in the Castle and the Tolbooth which was used for the meetings of Parliament from 1560: here the Scottish Parliament met up to the Union: it occupies the south and west sides of Parliament square, formerly known as Parliament close, on the south side of High street, behind St. Giles's Cathedral. The present front of the building is of recent date, in the Italian style; the front was originally in the Renaissance style. The hall formerly used for meeting of Parliament is 122 feet in length and 40 in breadth, the ceiling being of massive carved oak, and the floor also of oak. This apartment now forms a handsome promenade, where gentlemen of the legal profession meet daily during session to transact business and attend their cases pending before the supreme courts, to the meetings of which the Parliament House had been appropriated since the time of the Union. The subject of the stained window on the south side of the hall is the inauguration of the Court, in 1537, by James V., who is in the act of presenting the deed of confirmation, by Pope Clement VII., to the Lord President. The other figures represent Dunbar, Archbishop of Glasgow, the Abbot of Cambuskenneth, and judges and nobles of the time: this window was erected at Munich, in 1868, from a design by Kaulbach, and cost £2,000. The hall is ornamented with statues and portraits of distinguished lawyers, more or less connected with Scotland. Of the former, the principal are those of Lord President Forbes, in his judicial robes; Viscount Melville, Dundas of Arniston, Blair of Avonton, Francis Jeffrey, Boyle, and Cockburn. Among the portraits are: Lord Brougham, by Sir Daniel Macnee; Lords President M'Neill and Hope; John, Duke of Argyll; Lord President Lockhart, of Carnwath; and other distinguished leading functionaries. Within this hall was held the great banquet given by the corporation of the city to George IV., on his visit to Scotland in 1822. The Outer House, where the Lords Ordinary sit, is reached from below the window mentioned above, and consists of four small courts, where civil cases are tried for the first time. The Inner House is divided into two divisions (first and second), where appeals are heard from the Outer House and Sheriff Courts. The High Court of Justiciary is the supreme criminal tribunal of Scotland, and is situated in another part of the building. There are also entrances from the hall leading to the Advocates' Library, the Writers' to the Signet Library, and the Library of the Solicitors before the Supreme Courts, which occupy rooms in the main building; the first named was founded in 1682 and is entitled to a copy of every book published in Great Britain. This noble hall, with the justiciary, exchequer, and jury courts, and the office of the police commissioners, occupies the whole of Parliament square, except the north side, were St. Giles's Cathedral stands. In the centre of the square is an equestrian statue of Charles II.; the figure, which is in Roman costume, was erected in 1685.

The County Buildings for the county of the city of Edinburgh stand near the Parliament House, at the corner of the High street and of George IV. bridge, a street which is a continuation of one of the bridges over the Cowgate. The general plan is taken from the temple of Erectheus, in Athens, while the principal entrance is in the style of the choragic monument of Thrasyllus. The length of the eastern front is nearly 103 feet and of the northern front 57. The principal floor contains a hall, 50 feet in length and 27 in breadth, a court room, a committee room &c. Above are offices for the sheriff and sheriff clerks. The building was finished in 1819, at an expense of £15,000. The County Buildings having been found insufficient, an additional structure was erected in 1868, in the Italian style, at a cost of upwards of £44,000, a little to the south on George IV. bridge for the sheriff's court.

The Municipal Buildings, known as the Royal Exchange, in High street, was founded in 1753 and completed in 1761, at a cost of upwards of £31,000. It is built round a quadrangle and contains the City Council Chambers, the Magistrates' Court Room and a number of municipal offices. A tablet placed (1894) by the corporation at the entrance of the building contains the following inscription:—"On this site stood the Mansion of Sir Simon Preston, of Craigmillar, provost of the City of Edinburgh, 1556-7, in which mansion Mary, Queen of Scotland, after her surrender to the confederate lords at Carberry hill, spent her last night in Edinburgh, 15th June, 1567. On the following evening she was conveyed to Holyrood, and thereafter to Lochleven Castle as a State prisoner."

New Town Hall.—At a meeting of the Council, June 17, 1896, it was announced that Mr. Andrew Usher, distiller, had specifically offered to provide funds for the erection of a Town Hall for the city at an estimated cost of about £100,000, without reservation as to site or style of the proposed structure.

The General Post and Telegraph Office, erected on the site of the Old Theatre Royal, at the end of Princes street, is a large building in the Italian style, completed in May, 1866, at a cost of about £120,000. The foundation stone was laid by H.R.H. the Prince Consort in 1861.

The Inland Revenue Office occupies a spacious building in Waterloo place.

Her Majesty's Prison, on the south side of the Calton hill, originally consisted of a bridewell and the governor's house, both of which were of the Early English castellated style, designed by the celebrated Mr. Adam upon Jeremy Bentham's principle, and founded 30th November, 1791; about 1817 an additional block of the same style and also a new house for the governor were erected on the west side of the bridewell; in 1846 a block of the Later Norman castellated style, from designs by Brown, was erected on the east side of the bridewell. In 1882 the bridewell was demolished, and two new blocks of a style in harmony with the erections of 1817 and 1846 have been built partly on the site of the old bridewell: further alterations have since been completed, and it now contains about 500 cells.

Club Houses.—The New Club is a superior building in Princes street, erected by an association of noblemen and gentlemen. The University Club, in Princes street, was erected in 1866-7 at a cost of nearly £14,000, and is in the ornate Italian style with Grecian decoration. The Scottish Conservative Club and the Scottish Liberal Club have both fine buildings, also in Princes street. The Caledonian United Service Club is situated in Queen street, the Northern in George street and the New Union Club at the corner of Hanover and Rose streets.

LAW COURTS.

The College of Justice (founded by James V. 1532) comprise the following:—1, Thirteen Judges of the Court of Session, styled Lords of Session; 2, Advocates (barristers) who possess the privilege of pleading before every court in Scotland, and also in Scotch appeals before the House of Lords; 3, Writers to the Signet (similar to solicitors in England), Solicitors before the Supreme Courts, Advocates' First Clerks, Solicitors-at-Law and Chartered Accountants.

The Court of Session and Teind Court.—The Court of Session, the highest civil court in Scotland, originally consisted of 14 judges and a president, one half of the judges and the president being churchmen, and the king having the privilege of appointing three or four peers or lords of his great council to sit and vote with the lords of session. Ecclesiastics were appointed judges, even after the Reformation. Till 1808 the judges all sat in one court, but it was then divided into two separate courts, known as the First Division and the Second Division, which, however, might be brought together in cases of difficulty. In 1810 the junior judges were appointed to sit separately as Lords Ordinary, each trying cases in the first instance. In 1830 the number of judges was reduced to 13, with two presidents (of the first and second divisions of the Inner House), who are the Lord Justice General and the Lord Justice Clerk, the former being also Lord President of the whole court. The Lords Ordinary are five in number, forming what is called the Outer House; the First Division and Second Division, each consisting of three judges and a president, form the Inner House: the two remaining judges are attached, one to the Registration Appeal Court and one to the court to try election petitions. The Lords Ordinary may be called in to take part in the hearing of a case in the whole court. Cases may be carried from the Lords Ordinary to the Inner House, but only to that division of it to which the Lord Ordinary is attached who tried the case in the first instance. The junior Lord Ordinary acts as Lord Ordinary of bills, disposing of summary petitions and business requiring special despatch; but during the vacations of the court this office is taken by all the judges in rotation, except the Lord President and the Lord Justice Clerk. The judges of the Court of Session are appointed for life, and are always members of the Faculty of Advocates: they assume titles like those of peers, prefixing lord either to their surname or to the name of an estate. The judgment of the Court of Session may be appealed to the House of Lords. In 1815 trial by jury was introduced in civil cases in Scotland to the extent of deciding as to matters of fact and fixing the amount of damages. Jury trials are presided over by one or more of the judges of the Court of Session. The jury in civil cases consists of 12 jurymen, and a unanimous verdict is received at once; but if they cannot all agree, the verdict of a majority of nine is received after a certain time. The Teind Court is held every alternate Wednesday during term, and has the power of regulating and enforcing the payment of tithes or teinds; for the clergy cannot themselves exact their tithes, which are obtained from the landowners, and not from the tenants; it is through the medium of this court only they receive them. It belongs to this court to determine the amount of stipend which the clergyman of each parish shall receive out of the teinds of that parish, granting augmentations from time to time, when the teinds are not already exhausted. The judges of the Inner House of the Court of Session and one Lord Ordinary are the judges of this court.

The High Court of Justiciary, instituted 1672, is the supreme criminal court, and is presided over by the Lord Justice General, which office is held by the Lord President of the Court of Session. Next to him, and really the first acting judge, is the Lord Justice Clerk, subordinate to whom are five other judges, who are also Lords of Session. At stated times, the Lords of Justiciary proceed on circuits, holding courts in different towns. The Lord Advocate is the public prosecutor, and by him actions are raised in this court, according to his discretion. The causes which come before this court are tried by a jury of 15 persons, a majority of whom decide the same, from which there is no appeal.

The Sheriff Court of Chancery is presided over by the Sheriff of Chancery.

The Commissary Court.—Since the year 1830, the duties which this court formerly performed have been transferred to the Court of Session; still, however, a commissary clerk takes cognizance of testaments of persons dying abroad, having property in Scotland.

The Court of Exchequer.—This court, established 1707, which till recently was presided over by the chief baron and three ordinary barons, has undergone such a change as to be virtually abolished. The duties are now performed by certain judges of the Court of Session, in rotation, and the Queen's and Lord Treasurer's Remembrancer is the head of the Exchequer office.

The Lyon Court, which is nearly obsolete, formerly regulated state pageants, executed the writs of supreme courts, and decided upon armorial bearings. In the execution of the duties still remaining, the "Lord Lyon" is assisted by three heralds, three pursuivants and a body of messengers-at-arms.

The Faculty of Advocates.—The members of this society occupy a position similar to that of barristers in England, and it appears to have been instituted about the same time as the College of Justice (1532), and was at first limited to ten members. Although candidates for admission are not required to follow any prescribed course of preparatory study, they must produce one of certain University degrees held as qualifying, or pass a tolerably strict examination—first on general scholarship, and then, after a lapse of a year, on civil law, international law, and on the laws of Scotland. An advocate, when admitted, is privileged to plead in any court in Scotland (unless debarred by special statute, as in the Small Debts Acts), and also before the House of Lords. It is from this society that the bench is supplied with judges, and that the sheriffs of counties are selected. Though not possessing a charter of incorporation, it has always exercised corporate privileges, by electing its own office-bearers, the principal of whom is the president, or, as he is styled, the Dean of Faculty. The library is by far the largest, as well as the most valuable, in Scotland.

The Writers to the Signet are an important body, who have the sole right of passing warrants under the seal or signet of the reigning monarch, in order to render them valid; in addition to which they act as conveyancers, and as attorneys in the Supreme Courts. This body, besides its other functionaries, has a professor of conveyancing in the University of Edinburgh. The qualification for admission is an apprenticeship for five years; and the age for entering into indenture not under seventeen, provided always that where an applicant for indenture is not under the age of nineteen and holds a degree in Law, or in Arts, of a University of Great Britain or Ireland, granted after examination, the period of indenture may be three years. The members of this body amount to over 450; they have a valuable library, and an ample fund for widows.

The Solicitors before the Supreme Court, as an association, were the first publicly acknowledged in 1754, by an act of sederunt of the Court of Session, in which were set forth rules for their directions; these rules were altered and improved by another act in 1772. In 1797, they obtained a royal charter, which erected them into a body corporate, by the title Solicitors in the Court of Session, the High Court of Justiciary, and the Commission of Teinds. Members of this corporation are required to attend three classes of the Scotch law and conveyancing, previous to admission.

Solicitors-at-Law were incorporated by royal charter 1780. They formerly practised before the Sheriff Commissary and City Courts, of which they had a monopoly; but all are now entitled to practise before the supreme and inferior courts like other law agents. Entrants or candidates for admission are required to serve a regular apprenticeship with a member of the incorporation, and, after going through an examination before the Society, similar to other law agents, are admitted. In 1884, the Society obtained an Act of Parliament by which, after providing an annuity of £52 to each widow of all past or present members of the society, the funds were divided among the present members. The present privileges of members to practise in the courts are reserved by the private statute.

Sheriff Court of Edinburgh.—The courts are held in the Sheriff court, George IV. bridge. A court for the Leith district is held in the Sheriff Court room, Constitution street, Leith, on Tuesday at 10.15 o'clock in each week during the sessions of court. The Leith district includes the parishes of South Leith, North Leith, and Duddingston (excepting that part of the parish of South Leith which is within the parliamentary boundaries of Edinburgh). Appeals are taken by the Sheriff every Monday and Tuesday at 10 o'clock, or other convenient days, and an ordinary court is held every Tuesday and every Friday at 11 o'clock during the session. A Sheriff Small Debt Court for the county of Edinburgh is held within the Sheriff Court, Edinburgh, every Wednesday at 10 o'clock; and for the Leith district every Tuesday at 10.15 o'clock, within the Sheriff Court room, Leith, during the sessions of court. All civil causes are competent in these courts for any debt or demand not exceeding the sum of £12 sterling. Summonses are issued for these courts daily at the respective clerks' offices, George IV. bridge, Edinburgh, from 10 till 4, and Constitution street, Leith, from 11 till 3.

The Justice of Peace Court is of no earlier origin in Scotland than 1609. The Justices are empowered to judge in cases of breaches of the peace; to regulate highways, bridges, and ferries; to see the laws executed against vagrants, beggars, transgressors of the game laws, and frauds against the revenue, besides many other branches of jurisdiction. But the principal business of the justices in Edinburgh comes before them as a court for a speedy settlement of debts under £5, commonly called the Small Debt Court, which sits weekly in Edinburgh, and at longer intervals in the different villages of the country.

The Convention of the Royal Burghs was instituted by James III., and consists of a commission and assessors from each burgh. The Lord Provost of Edinburgh is perpetual president, and the city clerk of Edinburgh is clerk of the convention. The Court had considerable powers until the passing of the Burgh Reform Act, but is now much like a national Chamber of Commerce. The place of meeting of the annual convention is the Court room of the High Court of Justiciary, on the first Tuesday in April, when held in Edinburgh, and the committees meet in the Edinburgh Council chambers.

The Register House is the depository for the public records and registers of Scotland. The records of all suits at law, and the various documents which have been produced in actions before the supreme courts, are also placed here; and in virtue of a late Act, the parish registers of births and marriages have been collected here, whilst herein are deposited the returns of births, marriages, and deaths sent in by the registrars from all parts of Scotland. This establishment, important as it is, is almost peculiar to Scotland. The collections of documents deposited here is immense, and is, of course, accumulating; but few are of ancient date, for the greater part of the papers relating to this kingdom prior to the Restoration were carried away by Edward I., and at a later era by Cromwell; and a considerable portion of those that were suffered to remain were unfortunately lost or destroyed in consequence of a fire in 1700. The most ancient state papers in this house are the letter of the Scottish barons to the Pope in 1320, and the acts of settlement of the Scottish crown upon the Stuarts in 1371 and 1373. The building, finished in 1822 and situated at the east end of Princess street, fronting the North bridge, was planned by Robert Adam, and is a fine specimen of the Italian style. The frontage is 200 feet, and the width 120, the extended front being relieved by a pediment and Corinthian pilasters above the entrance; the structure is square, with a circular saloon in the centre, surmounted by a lead-covered dome, 50 feet in diameter: the cost was defrayed in part by a grant from George III. of £12,000 arising from the sale of forfeited estates, and the remainder by the Government, which also provided for its maintenance. Behind the principal building is one also in the Italian style, completed in 1860, which cost £26,440, and is available for additional storage room. The depute clerk register is (under the Lord Clerk Register and Keeper of the Signet) the actual head of the office which is divided into several sub-departments, including the General Record, the Historical, the General Registry, the Great Seal, Privy Seal and Signet offices, Chancery, and Sasine and Teind offices, and other registry departments.

ARTS AND SCIENCES.

The Royal Observatory and Astronomical Institution.—After several ineffectual attempts to erect an observatory, the foundation stone was laid on the Calton Hill in 1776, and it was completed in 1792. The Astronomical Institution was established in 1812, and the Town Council granted to the association the ground and building on the Calton Hill formerly destined for the purposes of an observatory, on the condition of their not being applied to any other purpose. The property was originally held in transferable shares of twenty-five guineas each, but now entirely belongs to the Government. Another observatory, erected in 1818 by the Astronomical Institution, from a design by Playfair, is a little to the east of the former. Connected with the observatory is a time-ball, conspicuously elevated on a tall pole on the summit of the Calton Hill, which falls, by the action of electricity, exactly at one o'clock p.m. Greenwich time. The Corporation of Edinburgh have taken over these observatory buildings on the Calton Hill, and are adding to them with the idea of making them a popular observatory, and removing thither the telescope from Murrayfield.

The Scientific Observatory on Blackford Hill was established about four years ago, in a less smoky situation, and the buildings, which occupy some three and a half acres, consist of the observatory proper, the residence of the Astronomer-Royal, the residences of his assistants, and the Lodge House, together with a number of smaller separate structures required for scientific observations. These were opened on 7 April, 1896, by Lord Balfour of Burleigh, Secretary of State for Scotland. The highest points of the buildings are the two towers at the east and west ends, one rising to a height of 75 feet and the other to a height of 44 feet. In the east tower there is a 15 inch refractor from Dunecht, and in the west a 24 inch reflector from Calton Hill. A special feature about these towers, in which these instruments are housed, is that the domes move round on wheels with such ease that a pull of a cord will set a weight of 17 tons in motion.

The Observatory is divided into a number of rooms, each devoted to its special purpose; but the only apartment of any extent is the library, which is 24 feet by 34, occupying the main floor of the annexe. In the library there is room for about 30,000 volumes, and already, with the Crawford collection, in which there are many valuable manuscripts, most of the shelves have been taken up. On the main floor, about the middle of the building, there is an experiment room or laboratory in which is placed the clock which may be said to control the time of Edinburgh and is connected with Greenwich by electricity, and by the same power it fires the one o'clock gun in the Castle, and drops the time ball on the Calton Hill. In this room there are also a number of instruments, notably a photographic measuring machine for measuring the distances between stars, and a large number of physical instruments. The entire cost is estimated at about £36,000.

The Royal Institution arose in 1819, and was incorporated in 1827 for the encouragement of the fine arts, and the apartments of the institution are in a magnificent building, on the north end of the Mound, in Princes street, erected from a design by Playfair, and is on the model of a Doric temple with fluted columns; the front range, supporting a pediment, on which is a statue of H.M. the Queen, by Steell. The building, commenced in 1823, and enlarged in 1836, cost £40,000. It contains a sculpture gallery of casts, a school of art, the rooms of the Royal Society of Edinburgh and of the Board of Manufactures. The library of the Royal Society of Edinburgh contains 15,000 volumes.

The National Gallery is immediately south of the Royal Institution, on the Mound; it was built in 1850-4, at a cost of £40,000, and is a building of the Ionic order, from a design by Mr. Playfair. There are two suites of octagonal rooms; the western contains the National Gallery of painting and sculpture, in which, besides specimens of the old masters, are same admirable works of more recent painters; the eastern is used for the annual exhibition of the Royal Scottish Academy, which is one of the great attractions of the city during the months of March, April and May. In the building may be seen Flaxman's beautiful statue of Robert Burns.

The Society of Arts, was incorporated in 1822, has since obtained the royal charter, and is very efficient in the encouragement of useful inventions, models of which are exhibited at its meetings, which are held once a fortnight in their hall, below the Assembly rooms, George street.

The Scottish National Portrait Gallery, Queen street, originated in a communication made through Sir William Fettes Douglas P.R.S.A. to the Board of Manufactures, at their meeting held on the 7th of December, 1882, from an anonymous gentleman who offered to the Board a sum of £10,000 to aid in the establishment of a Scottish National Portrait Gallery, upon condition that a like sum should be provided by the Lords of Her Majesty's Treasury, and subsequently a grant of £10,000 was voted by Parliament. The aggregate sum of £29,000 is now held by the Board as a fund for the formation and maintenance of the gallery. In May, 1884, the gentleman who gave the amount above-mentioned offered to the Board to provide funds for the purpose of erecting a building for the Portrait Gallery and the National Museum of Antiquities, upon condition that a suitable site should be provided. The present site was accordingly purchased at a cost of £7,500, of which £5,000 was voted by Parliament, the remaining £2,500 being provided by the Board of Manufactures out of their own funds. The buildings in Queen street were opened in July, 1889. On that occasion, it was announced that the donor was Mr. J. R. Findlay, a member of the Board, and that the sum which he had presented, for the erection of the building, and towards the endowment of the Portrait Gallery, amounted to £50,000. It is intended that while the Gallery should be primarily a collection of portraits of eminent Scottish men and women, it should also embrace portraits illustrative of the history of the United Kingdom. The Antiquarian Museum was removed from the Royal Institution, Princes street, to much larger rooms in this building. The library of this society contains about 10,000 volumes, chiefly relating to the archæology of Scotland. The Royal Scottish Geographical Society is also now located here.

The Royal Botanic Garden and Arboretum of Edinburgh occupies a fine position on the north side of the town, and has its entrance from Inverleith row. The main entrance to the arboretum is at the west side, and can be approached by Stockbridge. This garden, of which the professor of botany in the university is regius keeper, is one of the oldest in the kingdom, having been founded in 1670. Since then it has undergone many changes, both as to situation and extent, to accommodate it to the requirements of the Edinburgh Botanical School, which is the largest in the kingdom. The garden embraces an area of 27 Scotch acres, and is especially adapted for the purposes of tuition: it includes a pinetum, a herbarium, and a winter garden, a special room provided with microscopes for the pursuit of histological botany, class museum, and various ranges of hothouses and greenhouses. The palm house is 100 feet in length, 57 in breadth, and 72 feet in height. The class-room of the professor of botany, the museum, and the house of the curator are situated at the right hand side of the entrance. Admission is obtained to the garden free.

The Highland and Agricultural Society of Scotland was instituted in 1784, and incorporated by royal charter in 1787, and originally bore the name of the Highland Society. The leading purposes of the society are to offer premiums for reports on almost every subject connected with the cultivation of the soil, the rearing and feeding of stock, the management of the dairy, the improvements in agricultural machinery and implements, the growth of timber, the extension of cottage accommodation, the application of chemical science, and the dissemination of veterinary information.

LIBRARIES.

The Advocates' Library, by far the most valuable in Scotland, was founded by Sir George Mackenzie, in 1682. The collection of manuscripts numbers about 3,000 volumes, relating chiefly to the civil and ecclesiastical history of Scotland, most of which have been printed. The library is estimated to contain about 370,000 volumes. Thomas Ruddiman, the Latinist, and David Hume, the historian, were amongst its librarians. It is one of the five public libraries which still enjoy the privilege of receiving a copy of every book published in the United Kingdom. It is distinguished by the liberality of its management—every respectable applicant being freely permitted to consult its contents.

The Library of the Writers to the Signet.—The origin of the Signet Library dates from 1722, when the Society of Writers to her Majesty's Signet set aside certain funds for the purchase of law-books. In 1778 they began to collect the best editions of books in other departments of literature, with a view of forming a general library, to which Mr. Archibald Campbell, of Succoth, presented a collection of the principal ancient classics. A catalogue, printed in 1792, shows the library then contained about 3,400 volumes, and it now (1896) contains about 90,000 volumes, exclusive of pamphlets and tracts. The members of the society are permitted by the rules to borrow volumes from the library under certain restrictions, and even to extend this privilege to strangers whom they may recommend. The funds at the disposal of the society for maintaining the library are exclusively derived from the entrance fees of its members.

The Solicitors' Library.—The Library of the Solicitors before the Supreme Courts was formed in 1808. The inadequacy and inconvenience of the Society's premises had for many years been felt, but in 1887 arrangements were made for the acquisition of more commodious buildings, which resulted in the erection of the new library which was opened by the Lord Justice-General, May 12th, 1890. The cost was about £30,000. It contains about 18,000 volumes. The primary purpose of the library is for professional use, and for consultation during the sitting of the superior courts. Almost every work bearing on the law of Scotland is included. The Advocates' Library, the Signet Library, and the Solicitors' Library are located in the Parliament House.

The Library of the Faculty of Actuaries, 24 York place, was established in 1856. It contains, besides a large collection of pamphlets, 1,200 volumes exclusively professional and for reference. The library is maintained by an annual grant from the faculty. The use and privilege of the library is given to all matriculated students of the Faculty of Actuaries and to the members of the Actuarial Society in Edinburgh.

The Edinburgh Literary Institute, South Clerk street, was opened in 1872. Its object was to provide reading for the inhabitants of the southern districts of the city. The library contains 20,000 volumes, and is supported by the annual subscriptions of the readers.

The Edinburgh Subscription Library, 25 George street, was instituted in 1794, its object being to provide a good supply of general literature. It contains about 40,000 volumes, and is supported by shares and the annual subscriptions of its members.

The Royal College of Physicians was incorporated by charter in 1681. The hall, which is in Queen street, contains a library of about 26,000 volumes and a museum of materia medica.

The Royal College of Surgeons was incorporated in 1505, and is possessed of a most valuable museum; the bequest of Dr. Barclay's, and the purchase of Mr. Bell's, in addition to what has been otherwise acquired, have rendered their collection of anatomical preparations perhaps unequalled in Great Britain. The hall is in Nicolson street, and is a noble edifice in the Grecian style, with a portico in front supported by six fluted Ionic columns. It was erected in 1833, at a cost of £20,000.

The Royal Medical Society, 7 Melbourne place, numbers about 150 members, but there are life members all over the world. The library contains 30,000 volumes, chiefly medical literature and allied sciences, for the use of members only, though members of the medical profession visiting the city are allowed access to it.

The Philosophical Institution, Queen street, was originally established in 1832 as the Edinburgh Philosophical Association. It was reorganized in 1846, and again in 1889 under its present constitution. Its object is to afford to its members the means of acquiring the most recent and complete information on all matters of general interest, of obtaining instruction in science, arts, literature, and of enjoying recreation. As recently extended and improved the institution possesses most of the advantages of a literary and social club for ladies and gentlemen. The various departments of the institution include news room, reading room, writing room, ladies' room, smoking rooms, library, lectures, concerts, whist and golf clubs, and musical and dramatic society. The library contains 30,000 volumes, including a valuable collection of books of reference.

CHARITABLE TRUSTS AND HOSPITALS.

John Watson's Institution, Dean.—In the year 1759, John Watson, writer to the signet, bequeathed the residue of his estate to certain trustees, by them to be applied "to such pious and charitable uses within the city of Edinburgh as they shall think proper." In 1822 an Act of Parliament was obtained empowering the trustees to establish and endow "an hospital for the maintenance and education therein of destitute children, and bringing them up to be useful members of society; and also for assisting in their outset in life such of them as may be thought to deserve and require such aid." The edifice, designed by Mr. William Burn, was founded in 1825, and completed in 1828. About 100 are maintained in it, who must be fatherless and children of the better classes, such as clergymen, officers in the army and navy, legal or medical practitioners, and such like; when admitted, they must have completed their seventh year, but be under the age of ten. They are not retained after the age of fourteen. They are instructed in English, Latin, French, drawing, mathematics, vocal and instrumental music, dancing, drill, &c. The establishment is under the management of fifteen directors—the keeper and deputy keeper of the signet, the treasurer of the institution, and twelve commissioners of the writers to the signet. The fund, which in 1781 amounted to no less than £5,000, has been largely increased by the care and attention of the trustees.

Donaldson's Hospital, West Coates.—This hospital was founded by James Donaldson, of Broughton Hall, printer, who died in Edinburgh in October, 1830, bequeathing the greater part of his property, amounting to about £200,000, to trustees, for the endowment and erection of an hospital for the maintenance of poor boys and girls, after the plan of the Orphan Hospital in Edinburgh and John Watson's Institution. The building can hold 250; it contains at present 218 children (126 boys and 92 girls), of whom 115 (64 boys and 51 girls) are deaf and dumb. Those eligible for admission are declared to be—1st, "Poor children of the name of Donaldson or Marshall, if appearing to the governors to be deserving;" 2nd, "such poor children as shall appear to be in the most destitute circumstances and the most deserving of admission." None are received whose parents are able to support them. The children are clothed and maintained in the hospital, and taught such useful branches of a plain English education as will fit the boys for trades and the girls for domestic service. There is in connection with the building, a spacious gymnasium. The age of admission is from seven to nine, and that of leaving the hospital fourteen years. The building, which occupies a commanding position at the west end of the city, is a large quadrangular structure, in the Elizabethan style, from a design by the late W. H. Playfair.

The Maiden Hospital, Ashfield house, Grange loan.—This institution was founded in 1704 by the Freemen of the Incorporated Trades, aided by Mary Erskine, widow of James Hair, druggist. The governors were incorporated by statute in 1707. The management is vested in the deacons of the thirteen incorporations, two trades councillors, two persons of the name of Erskine, the preses of the Society of Barbers, and nine persons elected by the other governors, in all twenty-seven. Forty-nine girls are maintained in the institution. Those eligible for admission under presentations held by the Trades Incorporations or the Society of Barbers of the city of Edinburgh are the daughters, granddaughters, or great-granddaughters of freeman or craftsmen, whom failing, any girl qualified by age and otherwise presented by the holder of the presentation. They are required, when admitted, to be of the age of seven and under that of eleven years, and are not retained above the age of seventeen. They are instructed in the English language, in grammar, French and music, in writing, arithmetic, geography, history, sewing, and laundry work. On leaving each girl receives £10 and a Bible.

John Watt's Hospital, Leith.—The late John Watt, merchant in Leith, by his trust disposition and settlement, dated 1827, bequeathed the residue of his means and estate to trustees, with directions for the erection of an hospital in Leith, to be called "John Watt's Hospital." It is for the reception and maintenance of men and women of fifty-five years of age and upwards who are in destitute circumstances, but who are not pensioners or in receipt of an allowance from any charitable institution except the Parochial Board of South Leith. The following is the order of priority:—1st, Persons of the name of Watt; 2nd, natives of the parish of South Leith of whatever name; 3rd, persons of whatever name who have constantly resided in the parish of South Leith for at least ten years preceding their admission; and 4th, natives of, or persons who have constantly resided in, the city of Edinburgh or county of Midlothian. The hospital stands at the south-west corner of the Links, and was opened in the beginning of 1862.

Cauvin's Hospital, Duddingston, was founded by Louis Cauvin, teacher of French in Edinburgh, and afterwards farmer at Duddingston, who died in 1825, bequeathing his property for the erection and endowment of "an hospital for the relief, maintenance, and education of the sons of respectable but poor teachers, the sons of poor but honest farmers, whom failing, the sons of respectable master printers or booksellers, and the sons of respectable servants in the agricultural line." This settlement was explained and modified, and the governors incorporated by a parliamentary statute in 1827. The management is in the survivors of certain individuals nominated by the founder, and others assumed by them, and in the following ex-officio trustees, viz., the Lord Provost of the city, the principal of the University, the rector of the High School, the ministers of Duddingston, Liberton, and Newton, the proprietor of the estate of Niddrie, and the factor of the Duke of Abercorn. The institution was opened in 1833, and the number of boys at present maintained there is seventeen. They are required, when admitted, to be not more than eleven years, and are retained for six years. They are taught the ordinary branches of education, and Latin, Greek, French, German and mathematics.

The Industrial or Ragged Schools, of which the first was instituted in 1855, and which provide food as well as education, are a great boon, and have saved very many by fitting them for respectable and useful places in society. The Rev. Thomas Guthrie D.D. of this city was the originator of the ragged school system. Numerous Sunday schools are in beneficial operation.

The Orphan Hospital, Belford road, Dean, was projected in 1727, by Andrew Gairdner, merchant in Edinburgh; and in 1733 a house was hired and thirty children received in it. In 1735 an edifice was erected near the Trinity College Church. The present building was erected in 1833, from the designs of the late Mr. Thomas Hamilton. The revenue is derived from voluntary contributions and legacies, in addition to the interest on accumulated donations since its foundations. About 127 boys and girls, including presentees and boarders, are maintained in the institution, the benefits of which are not confined to any district of Scotland. When admitted they must be of the age of seven and not above ten years; they receive the benefit of a thoroughly good education. Boarders from any part of Scotland are now received into the hospital at £16 yearly for boys and £14 yearly for girls, which includes all expenses of whatever kind.

Trinity Hospital, the oldest charitable institution in the city, was founded by Mary of Gueldres, in the year 1461, for the reception of thirteen poor persons. The building was demolished in 1846, along with Trinity College Church, to make way for the North British railway, and the funds were distributed in outdoor relief. The ordinary revenue is about £5,700. By interlocutor of the First Division of the Court of Sessions, of 3rd February, 1880, a new scheme was authorized for the distribution of this charity. The number of pensioners, of whom one-eighth are incurables on the higher scale of pension of £25, has been fixed at 60, of whom 22 are appointed by private patrons, and on the lower scale of pension of £15 at 100. Applicants for the benefit of this fund require to have resided in Edinburgh for two years at some time, and supported themselves by their own industry during that period, without aid from any charity, or be widows or children of burgesses, and must be in decayed circumstances at the date of their application, and not under 50 years of age, except where they are prevented from working by incurable disease, in which case there is no limit in point of age.

The Royal Blind Asylum and School was formed by the amalgamation of the Asylum for the Industrious Blind and the School for Blind Children at one time located in Gayfield square. The idea of this ancient institution was first communicated by Dr. Blacklock to Mr. Miller, who were both blind from their infancy, but it was chiefly through the active and benevolent exertions of Dr. David Johnstone, minister of North Leith, aided by a subscription of £20 at the commencement from the celebrated Wilberforce, that the institution was founded in 1793. In 1836 the School for Blind Children was founded by Mr. James Gall, and was opened with only one pupil. Mr. Gall was himself a printer, and having seen some of Abbé Haüy's books in Paris, he determined to give the Bible to the Scotch blind in raised type. Her Majesty, in 1853, by a donation of 250 guineas, set an example which has since been followed by many benevolent people. To commemorate the Queen's gift one of the pupils, selected by her Majesty, is called the "Queen's Scholar." In 1876 the school premises in Gayfield square, and those for females in Nicolson street, being found too small, the directors secured four acres of ground at West Craigmillar, a southern suburb, and opened the building now occupied as home and school. The educational appliances are of the first order. Books in Braille type are printed on the premises. In 1806 property was bought in Nicolson street, for £1,575, for the male department, and in 1822 other property in the same street, for £2,200, as a home for the female blind. The lower part of these buildings is advantageously laid out in shops, while the upper part is used for a warehouse or is let for various purposes. The inmates now number 213 in all—42 adult females, 126 adult males, and 45 boys and girls. In the industrial department the females are employed in sewing covers for mattresses and feather beds, knitting stockings, &c. The males are chiefly employed in making mattresses, brushes, baskets, mats, ship fenders &c. and in the weaving of sacking, matting and "rag carpets," a number of looms being employed in this work. The Nicolson Street buildings have recently undergone extensive alterations, and consist of an elegant façade, surmounted by dormer windows, and a handsome cornice, with a large centre doorway, and on either side two windows, separated by stone pillars. In a niche in the upper part is the late Handyside Ritchie's bust of Dr. Johnstone, the founder. The governing body consists of the Earl of Haddington, president; four vice-presidents, and twenty-four directors, chosen at the annual meeting of subscribers. The endowments amount to upwards of £12,000.

The Institution for the Education of the Deaf and Dumb, established in 1810, is a large plain structure, situated in Henderson row. The original expense of the building, furnishing &c. was upwards of £7,000, and it was enlarged in 1894 by the addition of two wings, at a cost of £6,000.

Crighton Bequest.—By his trust disposition and settlement the late Mr. James Crighton, merchant in Edinburgh, who died in November, 1889, bequeathed to the Lord Provost, Magistrates and Council, and Governors of Trinity Hospital, the sum of £5,000, to be invested to provide pensions of £12 each, with £5 of funeral money; the pensioner to have the same qualification as for Trinity Hospital.

Alexander Fund.—Formerly this fund was administered by the Governors of Trinity Hospital, in conjunction with the Trinity Hospital Fund proper, but by interlocutor of the Lords of Council and Session, of 3rd February, 1880, the management has been invested in a body of trustees, and a scheme adopted by the Court for its future administration. Under this scheme the free income is to be divided amongst eight men and four women, with a maximum pension of £27 15s. 6d. Applicants for the fund must be unmarried when elected, and not under 50 years of age, excepting any additional beneficiaries whom the trustees may appoint, in the selection of whom there shall be no restriction of sex or marriage. The beneficiaries shall be indigent persons of good reputation who have not fallen into decay through their own vice and prodigality, and who are not in receipt of parochial relief. First, those of the kindred of Mr. Alexander, of Knockhill, who died in 1696, either upon his father's or his mother's side. Secondly, those of the surname of Alexander who shall apply within three score days next after any vacancy shall be publicly announced; and thirdly, other persons qualified as aforesaid as the patrons shall think fit. All persons bearing the name of Alexander, whether as their parents' name or their husband's name, shall be deemed to fall within the favouring clause of the bequest. Applicants not claiming on the footing of being entitled to a preference must have resided in Edinburgh for two years, and for that period must have supported themselves by their own industry, or at least without aid from any charity.

The Magdalene Asylum, originally instituted in 1797, was formerly in Canongate, but now occupies a building at Dalry; this charity is supported by contributions, bequests and the profits arising from the work of the inmates.

The New College Missionary Society was founded 1877, in the Pleasance district. It was started in a building formerly occupied by the Pleasance Free church, but in 1890 it was found necessary to rebuild the mission premises, which now consist, besides the hall, of a house for the missionary and seven students, and cost altogether about £5,000; they are in the Tudor Gothic style.

The Ministers' Widows' Fund was originated in 1743, and received the sanction of Parliament in 1744, and was established on its present footing by Acts passed in 1778 and 1814. The widow is entitled to an annuity, corresponding to the rate her husband had chosen; and the children, if he leaves no widow, to provisions of £100, £150, £200, or £250, according to the rate the father may have paid.

Horn's Charity distributes the interest of £3,500 to day labourers out of employment at Christmas &c.

Dr. Robert Johnston's Bequest of £3,000 is equally appropriated in finding employment for the poor, in clothing the boys in Heriot's Hospital, and in support of poor exhibitioners at the University.

The income of Mr. Strathan's Estate is bestowed in small annual sums on poor old people not under 65 years of age, and on orphans not above twelve.

Scougall's Bequest.—John Scougall, a merchant in Leith, bequeathed £2,000, the interest to be paid to daughters of merchants (not shopkeepers) in Leith. They must be Episcopalians, but whom failing, members of the Established Church. The beneficiaries are nominated by the clergymen of St. James's.

The Charity Workhouse, in the southern district, was erected by voluntary contributions in 1743, and the principal funds for its support are a tax on the valued rents of City parish, collections at the church doors, charitable donations and contributions. The average number of its inmates is upwards of 700. There is also another workhouse in the parish of St. Cuthbert, opened in 1762, conducted nearly on the same plan as the former.

The House of Refuge, in Canongate, is for the reception of all persons in a state of destitution.

The Royal Infirmary, Lauriston place, the foundation stone of which was laid in 1870, was opened in October, 1879; the cost of its erection was £350,000. In 1896 plans were passed for additions to be built on the site of the Children's old hospital.

The Sick Children's Hospital, founded in 1859, has been removed to Rillbank and buildings erected at a cost of £40,000, under the superintendence of Mr. G. Washington Browne A.R.S.A. comprising an administrative block in the centre with wings on either side, around an open quadrangle: total number of beds, 118.

The Royal Public Dispensary, in West Richmond street, was founded in 1776, by the late Dr. Andrew Duncan, and is liberally conducted, but still too limited in its scale for a population so large as that of Edinburgh; consequently several others have arisen in different localities, including those exclusively for the eye and the ear. The New Town Dispensary, in Thistle street, was instituted in 1815, and is supported by subscriptions.

Chalmers' Hospital, in Lauriston place, opened in 1864, was erected, and is maintained, by funds bequeathed by George Chalmers, plumber in Edinburgh, "for the sick and hurt." The management of the charity is in the Dean and Faculty of Advocates.

The Church of Scotland Deaconess' (Lady Grisell Baillie Memorial) Hospital, Pleasance, belongs to the Church of Scotland and perpetuates the memory of the church's first deaconess. It has been erected for the purpose of providing practical training in sick-nursing for the deaconesses and other mission workers of the church. The Hospital contains 20 beds (with 2 extra beds for special cases). The total cost of the buildings, including the price of the site and the furnishing and equipment, was £3,766.

The Royal Association for Incurables (The Longmore Hospital), Salisbury place, was founded in 1874. Many additions have been made to it from time to time. In 1893 a new wing was added, with accommodation for 34 additional patients.

MARKETS.

The Poultry and Meat Markets are built on the rising ground at the south end of the North bridge, and are approached either from Market street, Cockburn street, or the North bridge. The Waverley Market, in Princes street, is the only market in the city for the sale of fruit and vegetables. The market days are Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. Public meetings, concerts &c. are held in this market. There are also markets at Stockbridge and in Broughton street, for the convenience of those vicinities, and likewise one for cattle contiguous to the Grassmarket. The Corn Exchange, in the Grassmarket, was erected in 1849, from a design by Mr. Cousin. It has a facade in the Italian style, but chiefly consists of a structure of iron and glass, 150 feet long and 98 feet broad.

PLACES OF AMUSEMENT AND RECREATION.

The Theatre Royal, on the site of the old Adelphi Theatre, which was burned down in 1853, stands at the head of Broughton street and Leith walk.

The Royal Lyceum Theatre is in Grindlay street, the Operetta House in Chambers street, and the Empire Palace in Nicolson street; the Assembly Rooms are in George street, and were erected in 1787; they form part of a plain building, ornamented by a portico.

The Hopetoun Rooms, in Queen street, are appropriated to balls and concerts. The national game of golf has several clubs to promote its practice. There are curling and skating clubs also.

The Queen's Park is an extensive area on the east of the city and includes what was the park of Holyrood Palace, embracing Salisbury crags, around which is the Queen's drive, constructed in 1844-47.

Bruntsfield Links are extensive open grounds situated on the road to Morningside, to the south of the city, and is used for the national game of golf. A Roman Catholic Nunnery, the Convent of St. Margaret, was erected here in 1834. To the east of this common are the Meadows, the property of the city, extending almost to Newington; this tract of level ground, adorned with trees, is about three-quarters of a mile in length and a little less than a quarter of a mile in breadth; the Melville drive passes along the whole length of the southern side.

Further south is the Blackford Park, established by the Corporation in 1884, this, which formed part of the Burgh moor, is a grassy upland, rising to a considerable height and extending over 100 acres. The new Observatory has been built here.

MONUMENTS.

The National monument of Scotland, the most striking feature of Calton Hill was commenced in 1822, to commemorate our victories during the Peninsular war, but abandoned for want of funds, after £13,000 had been spent, resulting in a collection of twelve columns giving the idea of a ruined temple. The monument to Lord Nelson, also on the Calton Hill, comprises a circular tower, in stages gradually diminishing, 100 feet high, its base being 356 feet above the level of the sea. Monuments to Professor Playfair and Professor Dugald Stewart are placed close together on the Calton Hill. There is also, on the southern side of the hill, near the High School, a monument of Burns; this and the one to Professor Stewart both take the form of a Grecian circular temple: and in the Calton burying ground, a little to the west, is a monument to David Hume. The monument to Sir Walter Scott stands in Princes Street gardens, and is a Gothic structure, rising to the height of 180 feet, formed on the model of the monumental crosses of the middle ages. In the centre is a marble statue of Scott, with one of his favourite dogs at his feet, the work of Steell. The design of the monument is by George M. Kemp, who died during its erection. In the niches are figures of some of the principal characters of Scott's novels and poems; its inauguration took place in August, 1846. The statue of Charles II. in Parliament square, is an equestrian one, erected by the city in 1685. In the centre of St. Andrew's square stands a column erected by subscription, to the memory of the first Lord Melville, the design of which was copied chiefly from Trajan's column at Rome; it was completed in August, 1822; the entire height of the pedestal and pillar is 136 feet 4 inches, and the statue on the top 14 feet additional. Opposite the Royal Bank is a fine equestrian statue of the Earl of Hopetoun, and in the same square, facing George street, a group representing Alexander and Bucephalus was erected by subscription in 1884. The equestrian statue of the Duke of Wellington (by Steell) is placed in the front of the Register Office, Princes street. It was erected by public subscription. A fine bronze statue (by Chantrey) of William Pitt stands at the intersection of George street and Frederick street; another statue by the same artist, of George IV. with royal robes and sceptre, stands at the point where George street and Hanover street cross. At the intersection of George street by Castle street a statue of the Rev. Dr. Chalmers (by Steell) was erected in 1878. On the esplanade of the castle there is a bronze statue of the Duke of York, uncle of her present Majesty, and also a monument to Colonel Mackenzie C.B. who served for 42 years in the 92nd Highlanders, and died in 1878, and one in memory of the officers and men of the 78th Regiment. A fine monumental statue, erected in honour of the second Lord Melville, occupies an open space in Melville street, in the western part of the New Town. There are also statues of Allan Ramsay, the poet, of John Wilson, the author of "Noctes Ambrosianæ," Adam Black, the publisher, Dean Ramsay and Dr. Livingstone, the great African traveller. They stand in Princes Street gardens, facing Princes street. At the east end of St. Colme street is an elegant Eleanor cross in memory of Miss Catherine Sinclair, the authoress. The Martyrs' monument, in the old Calton burying ground, is a tall obelisk, erected in 1845, to the memory of several gentlemen who were banished in 1793 for advocating parliamentary reform. There is a monument to Alexander Smith in Warriston cemetery. In Charlotte square, at the end of George street, is the statue of H.R.H Prince Albert, the inauguration of which took place in August, 1876, on the occasion of Her Majesty's visit to Edinburgh. The design, by Sir John Steell R.S.A. is that of an equestrian statue, 15 feet high, weighing eight tons, on a granite pedestal, 100 tons in weight. The Prince is in a field-marshal's uniform, and the total cost of the monument was about £16,500. A recent addition to the monuments of the city is that erected in West Parliament square to the late Duke of Buccleuch, which consists of a bronze figure in the robes of the Garter, by the late Sir J. G. Boehm R.A. on a pedestal, with bas-reliefs and other bronze ornamentation. The monument was designed by Rowland Anderson LL.D. and cost about £8,000.

ANTIQUITIES.

Holyrood Palace.—This historical building stands at the eastern end of the Canongate on the low ground which lies to the north-east of Salisbury Crags and occupies, with the ruins of the Chapel Royal, the site of the Old Abbey of the Holy Rood and the palace erected by James V.; the present building being mostly erected by Charles II. in 1671. The principal front looks to the west and owing to the old north-western tower and the one at the south-west angle built to imitate it (both of which project forward like wings) it has a somewhat baronial appearance marred by the two-storied screen which unites the two towers and is of a French style as is also the rest of the palace, consisting of a quadrangle 94 feet square, with the two-storied screen on the west and a three-storied building of ashlar with pilasters of three orders forming the other three sides, the lower story having a colonnade of nine arches on each face. The north side of the quadrangle on the first floor is occupied by the picture gallery, 150 feet long, and to the north of the picture gallery are Lord Darnley's apartments and east of these lie the ruins of the fine Early English chapel of the ancient Abbey, now known as the Chapel Royal. In the picture gallery, a long apartment with a rather low roof, are hung pictures stated to be portraits of the kings of Scotland, from Fergus I. downwards, but they are worthless as works of art, and equally so as portraits, having been all painted in 1684-6 by James de Witt, a Dutch painter, who received £240 for the whole. In this picture gallery the peers of Scotland meet to elect their representatives for the House of Lords, and here her Majesty's Lord High Commissioner to the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland holds his levees and receptions. The State apartments occupied the southern portion of the quadrangle. There are some gardens at the back of the palace and a statue of H.M. the Queen and a restored copy of the great fountain of Linlithgow ornament the fore court.

In May, 1537, James V. brought his French bride, Magdalene, daughter of Francis I. to the palace. In 1561, Queen Mary came home to Holyrood palace, a widow of 18, her natural brother, James Murray, being commendator of Holyrood, and on 29 July, 1565, she was married in "The Chapel Royal" to Lord Darnley, son of the Earl of Lennox and her own cousin-german; then followed the murder of Rizzio, the death of Darnley by violence at Kirk-o'-field and the marriage of Mary to Bothwell whom she created a duke two days earlier) on the 15th May, 1567, in the council room of the palace, followed by her surrender at Carberry Hill, and on 16 June, 1567, she left Holyrood never to return. In September, 1579, James VI. came for the first time to this palace and left it for his new kingdom of England on the 5 April, 1603, and in 1617 he had the Chapel Royal repaired and fitted for service. Conventions of Estates were held at Holyrood in 1631-2-3 and in the latter year King Charles was crowned in the Chapel Royal. In 1650, Cromwell quartered his troops in the palace, and in November of that year a great part of the building was destroyed by fire. In 1679, the Duke of York came to Ho yrood and had a private chapel fitted up on the north side of the quadrangle and when king in 1687 he revived the ancient Order of the Thistle, assigning the chapel of Holyrood as the place for their stalls with banners &c. to be placed, but in 1689 a mob destroyed the chapel and much damaged the palace. The next Royal occupant of the palace was Prince Charles Edward in 1745, who held levees and balls in the State apartments and left it to march to London in October of that year. Charles X. of France (then Count D'Artois) occupied it from 1795 to 1799. In 1822 George IV. visited it, and in 1842 her present Majesty held a levee and drawing-room there: the palace is still maintained as a Royal residence, and the Duke of Hamilton is hereditary custodian.

The Abbey of Holy Rood, founded by David I. in 1128, in memory of his protection from an accident whilst hunting, was served by canons of the Augustine Order, and was reputed to contain a relic in the form of a gold and ebony rood, in which was set a p ece of the real cross, which was lost in 1346 at the battle of Nevills Cross; the first charter was dated 1147. It had priories at St. Mary's Isle, Galloway, Blantyre, Clydesdale, Rowadil in Isle of Herries and Colonsay. In 1322 it was plundered by Edward II. and in 1326 Bruce held a parliament in the abbey, and in 13 6, a council of nobles was held to protest against the pretensions of the kings of England to the over lordship of Scotland; in 1381 John of Gaunt, duke of Lancaster, was entertained in the abbey when compelled to flee from England, and in 1385 Richard II. partly burnt it. In 1430 the twin sons of James I. were born in the abbey; six years later the survivor of these, James II., was crowned in the Abbey Church. James III. married Margaret of Denmark here and received as her dowry the Isles of Orkney and Shetland. James IV. in 1503, married another Margaret, daughter of Henry VII. of England, and took her to the new palace he had built adjoining the abbey, and apparently occupying its front courtyard. In July, 1524, James V. (then thirteen years of age), came and assumed the charge of the kingdom with Angus for regent. Of the abbey church there remains only the north-west tower; the west front with a very fine Early English door-case, with two perpendicular windows above it; the walls of the n ave aisles, which have interlaced arcading with single light-pointed windows; the south arcade of the nave consisting of six pointed arches, springing from clustered columns and supporting a clerestory of double arches, and the present east end, built across the western end of the intersection and containing three modern Decorated windows: the whole edifice is roofless and its pavement is composed of numerous tombstones, besides which are some larger monuments, and on the exterior of the south aisle wall are the remains of the cloister. The dimensions of the church are: length of nave, 127 feet; breadth, 29 feet 6 inches and breadth of each aisle, 14 feet 9 inches; height of east end, 70 feet; height of north-west tower, 52 feet by 23 feet square

Moray House, on the south side of Canongate, was erected in 1618 by Mary, Countess of Home, eldest daughter of Lord Dudley, and remained in the Earl of Moray's family until 1835. It was the residence of Oliver Cromwell whilst he was in Edinburgh in 1648. At the time of the Union it was occupied by the Earl of Seafield, the Chancellor of Scotland, and many meetings for deliberation on the question of the Union were held in it. A popular legend represents the Treaty of Union as having been signed in a summer-house in the garden. The house is now occupied as a normal school in connection with the Free Church.

On the opposite side of the street is the old Canongate Tolbooth, a relic of antiquity It is a gloomy but picturesque building, of the end of the 16th century, with corner turrets, a small spire, a clock fixed in a wooden projection and an outside stair, and on its front is the inscription, "Sic itur ad Astra;" up to 1847 it was in use as a prison and is now occupied as a police and fire station.

Grassmarket. In the centre of the wide street called the Grassmarket, the paving stones are arranged in the form of a small St. Andrew's cross, to mark the spot on which stood the notorious "gallows-tree," until 1785; during the persecuting period when Charles II. and James II. attempted to enforce the prelacy upon the people of Scotland, in this street, and from a dyer's pole it was that Porteus, the captain of the city guard, was hanged by the mob in 1736, the leaders breaking open a chandler's booth to obtain a rope and leaving a guinea in payment.

John Knox's House, an ancient house at the junction of High street with the Canongate, projects at the terminating corner of the former, narrowing the street several feet at the point called Netherbow. In consequence of the dilapidated state of the building, and its inconvenient projection into the street, its removal was contemplated, but this was not carried out, and instead the building was repaired in 1850, and has since become, by legacy, the property of the Free Church of Scotland.

An old house in Lady Stair's close, off the Lawnmarket, erected in 1622, was the residence about 1706 of Viscountess Primrose, subsequently Countess of Stair and an ancestor of the present Earl of Rosebery.

Arthur's Seat, a hill above Holyrood palace, on the east of the city, rises to the height of 822 feet above the sea, with a conical summit, and presenting on the west a precipitous angle towards the town, which line of cliff is called Salisbury Crags, and behind which lies the valley known as Hunters Bog, now a shooting range, but in 1745 the site of Prince Charles's Camp. From the summit twelve counties are visible. To the north are the ruins of St. Anthony's chapel and Hermitage, and near the foot is St. Anthony's well; west of Salisbury Crags is the lower hill of Saint Leonard, where existed in former days a religious establishment and a cemetery. The Queen's Drive, a carriage way made in 1844-47, winds round Arthur's Seat. At the opposite or south-western extremity is the village of Duddingston, with its loch, much frequented by anglers in summer and for skating in winter.

Saint Bernard's Well is a medicinal spring near Stockbridge, to the north of the city on the Water of Leith. The water is sulphurous. Lord Gardenstone purchased the property and erected over the well a small Doric temple, with a circle of columns supporting a dome, and having in the centre a figure of Hygeia, the goddess of health. At one time this spring was much visited, but of late years the well has become all but neglected.

Restalrig, or Restalric, is about a mile east of the Old Town, between the sea shore and Holyrood House. It was formerly an independent parish, with a collegiate church, the fragments of which are still remaining. Close to Restalrig are the Piershill Barracks for cavalry, inclosing a large parade ground.

EDINBURGH UNIVERSITY.

The Edinburgh University owes its foundation (in 1558) to a bequest of 8,000 merks left by Robert Read, Bishop of Orkney, and on the strength of this benefaction, which was not paid for some years, the magistrates of the city in 1563 purchased part of the ground on which the University now stands, which was then beyond the limits of the city. There stood the house called Kirk o' Field, where Darnley, the husband of Queen Mary, was murdered in 1567. Some of the church property confiscated at the Reformation was assigned for the support of the proposed University, and in the year 1579 a collection of books was bequeathed to it by Mr. Clement Littil, as a foundation for a library. The building was begun in 1580, a charter of erection was granted by James VI., 24th April, 1582, and in 1583 the college was opened for the reception of students, although at first with only one class and one regent or professor. In 1617 James honoured the establishment by calling it "The College of King James VI." In 1619 Sir William Nisbet, provost of Edinburgh, gave £1,000 Scots (£83 6s. 8d. sterling) towards the maintenance of a professor of divinity. An Act of the Scottish Parliament in 1621 confirmed its privileges, and placed it on the same footing as other universities. The Protector Cromwell endowed the University with an annuity of £200 sterling. William III. also bestowed on it £300 a year; but part of this grant was afterwards withdrawn by Queen Anne. By an Act of Parliament passed in 1858, for the regulation of Scotch universities, a general Council of the University of Edinburgh has been constituted, consisting of the principal, professors, graduates and persons who, before August, 1861, satisfied the University Commissioners of their having completed a certain course of attendance at the University. The affairs of the University are now immediately under the care of the Senatus Academicus and the University Court, constituted at the same time. The first-named body, composed of the principal and professors, administers the revenue and discipline; the second body, consisting of the rector, principal, the Lord Provost of Edinburgh and five assessors, representing other governing bodies, revise the decisions of the Senatus and attend to internal affairs of the University. The General Council has the right of electing a chancellor, who holds office for life; and on the 28th October, 1859, Lord Brougham, an alumnus of the University, was elected its first chancellor. The rector is elected by the matriculated students, but holds office only for three years. The Act of 1858 took from the Town Council of Edinburgh not only the government of the University but the patronage of its chairs, transferring the latter to seven curators, three of whom are nominated by the University Court and four by the Town Council. The number of professors is now 38, classified into the four faculties of divinity, law, medicine, and the arts, the last named including literature and general science. The school of medicine in this University, which has since risen to so much eminence, was first founded in 1721. Some of the present professors in the faculty of medicine are among the most distinguished men in Europe, and the University of Edinburgh has in former times had men of equal eminence, not only in the faculty of medicine, but in other faculties, of whom it may be enough to mention Dugald Stewart, Sir William Hamilton, and Dr. Chalmers. The students are not obliged to adopt any particular mode of living or of dress. None of them live within the walls of the college, as at Oxford and Cambridge. The winter session begins about the middle of October and terminates about the end of the first week in April. The summer session extends over the months of May, June and July. The present building was begun in 1789, in place of the old structure pulled down, from the designs of the architect, Mr. Robert Adam. The sum collected, though large, being far from sufficient, the works were stopped until, in 1815, Parliament made a yearly grant of £10,000 for ten years, to be expended in the completion of the buildings, under the superintendence of Commissioners appointed by Parliament. A handsome portico, supported by four stone columns of the Doric order, 26 feet high, forms the chief entrance. The east and west sides are 255 feet in length, and the south and north 356 feet. The design of the interior quadrangle is by Mr. Playfair. The accommodation then provided proved inadequate for the rapid growth of the University under the Universities Act (1858). To meet more particularly the increasing requirements of the faculty of medicine, extensive additional buildings have been constructed in Teviot row, in proximity to the other buildings and to the Royal Infirmary, and in these the faculty of medicine is provided with laboratories and class rooms. The music class room in Park place was erected in 1860, and the organ therein is of European celebrity, and the Museum contains a unique collection of musical instruments.

During the year 1896 the University Court received £20,000 under a bequest of the Earl of Moray, for the promotion of original research.

The University Hall, a stone structure on the model of a Greek theatre, is a recent gift to the University from William McEwan esq. M.P. and erected by him at a cost of £70,000. It is semicircular, and its dimensions are 134 feet in diameter, 170 feet from the arc to the back of the platform recess, and height from floor to centre light 90 feet, and it is calculated to hold 3,000 persons.

The University Natural History Museum and the Museum of Science and Art of Scotland.—Sir Andrew Balfour, to whom Edinburgh owes the institution of the Botanic Gardens, was also the founder of the University Museum of Natural History. His collections, which were very extensive, were placed, after his death, in 1694, in the hall of the college; and in 1697 Sir Robert Sibbald presented the college with a great variety of curiosities, both native and exotic, but from neglect it was almost completely destroyed. In the present century, the Museum, under the care of the late Professor Jameson, was enriched by various and extensive collections, particularly by the purchase of the magnificent one of M. Dufresne, of Paris; and the collection of birds alone contains upwards of 3,000 specimens. The Museum was some time ago removed from the place which it formerly occupied in the University to the Museum of Science and Art of Scotland, a building erected behind the University, and the foundation stone of which was laid by H.R.H. the Prince Consort, and it has since been completed by the erection of the west wing, finished in 1887. This wing has on the ground floor a fine series of mechanical models; on the first floor a complete ethnographical collection or specimens of the arts and manufactures of savage races, and on the upper floor the extensive collection of rocks, minerals and fossils formed by the Geological Survey of Scotland. The collection of specimens illustrative of the arts—raw materials, progress and processes of manufacture, implements, and machines, products &c—is probably unrivalled. It was begun by the late Dr. George Wilson, professor of technology in the University of Edinburgh. In the main hall of the building there are some fine casts of antique architecture, notably one added in 1896, of a column from the mausoleum at Halicarnassey, measuring about 40 feet in height; there is also a model of a great Indian gateway.

The University Library, the nucleus of which was a collection of books left to "Edinburgh and Kirk of God," by Mr. Clement Littil, in 1581, contains about 180,000 volumes, besides several thousand MSS. Among the latter is the remarkable assortment of historical and antiquarian documents and manuscript volumes bequeathed by the late David Laing, especially rich in matter relating to Scotland; other curious MSS. are the protest of the Bohemian nobles against the burning of John Huss; the original marriage contract of Queen Mary with the Dauphin of France; a vellum copy of Fordun's "Scotichronicon," and a variety of beautiful Persian and Abyssinian productions. The Library formerly enjoyed the right to claim a copy of every book entered at Stationers' Hall, but now receives instead an annual grant of £575. For the rest it is supported out of the general university fund. The Library Hall, 190 feet long by 50 wide, is a noble room, and is adorned by a large number of busts of old professors of the University.

LEITH.

LEITH, the seaport of Edinburgh, a parliamentary burgh and a coast guard station, is situated on the south shore of the Firth of Forth, at the mouth of the Water of Leith, a stream which rises in the Pentland Hills and flows through the north-west of Edinburgh. It is distant from the Royal Exchange of Edinburgh rather more than one mile and a half; the road between the two is called Leith walk, and is a noble street. The North British railway has two stations in the town and the Caledonian one near the docks. The original name of this town was Inverleith, which signifies the mouth of the Leith; and though it is indebted to its proximity to Edinburgh for its commercial prosperity, it has often suffered greatly from being involved in the fate of that city, and from the jealousy of its inhabitants. In 1485 the magistrates of Edinburgh ordained that no merchant of the city should take an inhabitant of Leith into partnership, and that none of the revenues of Edinburgh should be farmed by an inhabitant of Leith. The first great disaster which befell this rising town was its seizure and burning by the Earl of Hertford, in 1544. Three years afterwards Leith was again visited and injured by the same general, and in the year 1549 it became involved in almost every transaction of importance during the regency of Mary of Lorraine, in her efforts to oppose the Reformation, and sustained the horrors of a protracted siege, a garrison of French troops holding it in the interests of the Regent, while it was assailed by the Reformers and their English auxiliaries. Mary Queen of Scots mortgaged the superiority of Leith to Edinburgh, redeemable for one thousand merks, with reversion in favour of Bothwell, upon which the citizens of Edinburgh marched to Leith, and by taking possession of it, destroyed its independence. In 1643, the Solemn League and Covenant was signed at Leith, and the inhabitants have ever evinced the sincerity of their attachment to it. In 1650, Lambert, the parliamentary general, took possession of the town, and when Monk became commander-in-chief, he resided for some time in it, and by order of Cromwell the citadel was repaired and greatly strengthened. During General Monk's residence he induced a number of English to reside here, who infused a spirit of mercantile adventure into the inhabitants. In 1715 the citadel, or Leith Fort, was seized by the Jacobites, who after holding it a short time, and plundering the custom house, hurriedly evacuated it during the night. This fortress was situated about a quarter of a mile to the west of the custom house, and there only remains of it now the arched gateway. Towards the close of the last century the celebrated Paul Jones threatened it, but a sudden storm coming on, the buccaneer was obliged to make a precipitate retreat. Its subsequent history is involved with that of Edinburgh. The town is irregularly built, and most of the older streets are crooked and narrow, and is divided by the river, which is crossed by a stone bridge and three drawbridges, into two parts, called North Leith and South Leith. Leith in 1838 was, by the Act 1 and 2 Vict. c. 355, separated from Edinburgh, to which it had been sold in 1567, and the common goods and rates were vested in the provost and magistrates. By the Act 3 and 4 William IV. c. 77, the burgh was divided into five wards, and the town comprises part of the parishes of North and South Leith, Cramond and St. Cuthberts, now governed by a provost, four bailies and 10 councillors. The parliamentary burgh was erected in 1832, and in conjunction with Musselburgh and Portobello returns one member. An Act of Parliament was obtained in 1864, for a great scheme of drainage, for the conveyance of the sewage by pipes into the sea to the eastward of the east pier, far from the shore, at the Black Rocks. Gas and water are supplied conjointly with Edinburgh. A new street has been made from Great Junction street to Tolbooth wynd, getting rid of many ruinous tenements lying in the oldest part of the town.

DOCKS AND SHIPPING.

The tidal harbour of Leith is formed by two piers, the East and West piers, each about three-quarters of a mile long; it now admits vessels of 2,000 tons burthen. In 1799 the magistrates obtained an Act authorising them to borrow to construct two wet docks on the west side of the harbour; these were designed by John Rennie, esq. civil engineer; begun in 1810 and not finished until 1817. The cost of the whole was £285,108, exclusive of £8,000 for building a bridge over the Water of Leith. By an Act of Parliament, passed in 1826, the debt of the docks was settled at £265,000, lent by Government to Edinburgh at the rate of £3 per cent. to be redeemed by a sinking fund formed by a deposit of one per cent. for 12 years and two per cent. afterwards till the debt is extinguished, after which the docks to revert to the city of Edinburgh. Government also agreed to expend £19,000 for the extension of the western pier, and the city £2,800 on the eastern. In 1847 an Act was obtained for the construction of additional docks, and the extension of the east pier, Government granting £135,000 for the purpose. Since 1856 the docks have been under the control of Harbour and Dock Commissioners, to which the town councils and chambers of commerce of Edinburgh and Leith send representatives. The Victoria dock lies immediately to the north of Rennie's eastern wet dock, and was built by the late James M. Rendel esq. C.E. and opened about 1855. It is 700 feet long by 300 feet broad; its entrance 60 feet wide and 24 feet deep at high water, or 6 feet deeper than that of the old dock built by Rennie. Vessels drawing 22 feet are frequently admitted. On the western quay is a twenty-ton steam crane, used for shipping coals &c. There are four graving docks, the largest, called the Prince of Wales dock, was opened 2nd February, 1863, and is 400 feet long, 80 wide and 24 deep at spring tides. The dock is closed by an iron caisson. Another graving dock, called the Alexandra, 325 feet long and 48 feet wide, built at a cost of £40,000, was finished in 1896: both these docks are entered direct from the harbour. In the beginning of the year 1863, the Leith Dock Commissioners obtained from the Government Public Works Loan Commissioners a grant of £223,000 for the construction of further works. These included the reclamation embankment on the east sands, 3,500 feet long, enclosing 36 acres, a wet dock nearly eleven acres in extent, with an entrance basin of about two acres, and a lock of 350 feet by 60 feet. The plans were prepared by Mr. Rendel and Mr. Robertson. The dock, which is called the Albert, and connected with the harbour by a lock opening from the entrance basin, is 1,000 feet long and 450 feet wide, and has 28½ feet of water at high-water spring tides, the coping being 6½ feet above high water. The breadth of quay all round the dock is about 200 feet, affording room for both road and railway. The Edinburgh dock, commenced in 1874, and opened by H.R.H. the Duke of Edinburgh in July, 1881, lies south-east of the Albert dock, and consists of a main basin 500 feet long and 650 feet wide, from the eastern side of which run two other basins, each 1,000 feet long by 200 feet broad and divided by a jetty 250 feet broad: the north and south quays are each 1,500 feet long, and the two sides of the jetty 1,000 feet long each, having a total quayage in connection with the dock of 6,775 feet: this dock cost altogether about £300,000. Leith now possesses five docks and a total quayage of 3 miles 808 yards. An extensive range of warehouses lines the whole length of the south side of the old docks, and branch lines of the North British and Caledonian railways are brought direct on to the quays. Leith Port limits defined August, 1847, and legal quays appointed June, 1853. Fishing boats and implements distinguished by the letters "L. H."

There are two companies in the town engaged in the London and Leith trade, and others in trade between Leith and Hull, Liverpool, Newcastle, Aberdeen, Dundee, Inverness, Wick, Kirkwall, Lerwick, Stirling, Helmsdale, Hamburg, Rotterdam &c. The greater number of coasting vessels lie in the harbour, the others in the docks. The numerous steam vessels land and take on board both at Leith and Granton. The principal commerce of Leith lies chiefly in its shipping, foreign and colonial trade. The manufactures of Leith are considerable; they comprise color and paint works, artificial manure works and bone mills, roperies, canvas, sail and soap making, sugar refining, brewing, distilling and tanning, fish curing and coopering. Shipbuilding is also carried on to some extent; there are extensive saw mills and some large flour mills, also works for preserving provisions, railway engine works &c.

There are eleven branches of banks in the town, viz.:—the Bank of Scotland (two), the British Linen Company (two), the Clydesdale Bank, the Commercial Bank of Scotland, the National Bank of Scotland (two), the Royal Bank of Scotland (two) and the Union Bank of Scotland.

The Custom House, a building in the Grecian style, with a pediment and portico, is in North Leith, at the end of the lower drawbridge; it was erected in 1812, and cost £12,617; contiguous to it are extensive dock warehouses. The business of the excise office is likewise transacted within it.

The church of North Leith stands to the westward of the town, and was erected in 1814, in place of one built in 1496: it has a lofty tower of three Grecian orders, surmounted by a spire, the height to the summit of the cross being 158 feet: the portico is modelled from that of an Ionic temple near Athens: the church will hold a congregation of 2,000. The inhabitants have the right of nominating their minister, whose stipend is one of the best in Scotland.

South Leith church, originally founded at the end of the 15th century, is situated between Kirkgate and Constitution street, while a little north of it in Constitution street stands the Roman Catholic Church of Mary Star of the Sea, and near by the Episcopal Church of St. James.

St. Thomas's church, Shirra brae, founded and endowed by Sir John Gladstone bart. a native of Leith, in 1840, is a handsome building, with turret and spire.

St. John's Free church, Charlotte street, formerly a chapel of ease, is a spacious edifice.

The Mariners' Free church, near the docks, North Leith, is a building commodious for its purpose.

Restalrig church, rebuilt under the Church Extension Scheme, in 1837, is now in connection with St. Mary's, South Leith.

The United Presbyterians purchased, in 1895, and rearranged the building hitherto known as the Junction Street Hall, with seats for 800 persons.

There is also a place of worship for Wesleyan Methodists.

Among the public educational establishments are the Leith High School, erected in 1805; Dr. Bell's School, built in 1839; a boys' charity school, and one of industry for girls.

The Court House is a handsome structure, situated at the corner of Charlotte street.

Leith was the birthplace of George Wishart, the Scotch reformer who, for his zealous advocacy of the Protestant cause, was burnt at the stake at St. Andrews, March, 1545-6; also of Hugo Arnot, author of a history of Edinburgh, born 1749, died 1786.

The Fort, which forms one side of North Fort street, is now the head quarters for the Royal Artillery in Scotland.

The Trinity House, on the west side of Kirkgate, was originally founded in 1555, and rebuilt in 1817, in the Grecian style, at an expense of £2,500.

The Sailors' Home, the foundation stone of which was laid on the 20th September, 1883, by the Earl of Mar and Kellie, is an edifice in the Scottish Baronial style, situated at the corner of Tower place and Tower street. The principal elevation faces the harbour at Tower place, and is 90 feet in length, with four storeys and attics; the centre tower is 75 feet high and has provision for a clock with four illuminated dials, 7 feet in diameter; there is a coffee palace or restaurant, storeroom for seamen's effects, recreation room, reading room, and dining room. Accommodation is provided for 56 seamen and 9 officers. The building cost about £10,200.

There are also Industrial Schools, a Philharmonic Society, and benefit associations, together with Bible and missionary societies, a public institute and library, and other libraries, baths &c. The Town Hall, in Constitution street, was erected in 1827, at a cost of about £3,000.

The Poorhouse, in Great Junction street, was erected in 1850, at a cost of £4,500.

There are numerous charitable institutions, amongst which may be mentioned the Gladstone Asylum for Incurables; John Watt's Hospital, erected in 1862; the Lunatic Asylum and Leith Hospital and Dispensary.

Contiguous to St. Thomas's church is the hospital erected by means of a bequest of £1,000 made by a Mr. Stewart, and the like sum raised among the inhabitants. Mr. Peter Hamilton, of Edinburgh, was the architect. Seafield Baths are at the eastern extremity of Leith Links, an open space on the south-east of the town; they were erected in 1813, at an expense of £8,000, raised in £50 shares, and contain hot, cold, tepid and shower baths.

The market places of Leith are situated a short way east from the Tolbooth, and were erected in 1819. The areas of the different markets are surrounded with stalls. The parliamentary burgh of Leith in 1881 contained a population of 58,196, and in 1891, 67,700, and the town contained a population of 68,707.

GRANTON, a seaport, situated on the Firth of Forth, is also a quoad sacra parish formed out of the parishes of Cramond and St. Cuthbert's; it is about 2½ miles north-north-west of Edinburgh, and the same distance west of Leith. This port is the exclusive property of the Duke of Buccleuch. In 1837 an Act of Parliament was obtained for the construction of a pier here—the port of Leith being then ill-adapted for the reception of vessels at low water. The pier, which extends 1,700 feet into the Forth, is built of stone obtained in the immediate neighbourhood, and the depth within the pier at low water is from ten to twelve feet, and at high water about twenty-seven. Extensive breakwaters, exceeding 1,000 yards in length, extend on either side of the pier, thus forming a protected harbour. One of Morton's patent slips is laid down, and there are warehouses for bonded goods. Ship building is carried on on a large scale. There is a large hotel, and the North British Railway Company have a station; and hence passengers and goods are embarked for Burntisland, whence the railway is continued to Aberdeen &c. It was at Granton that H.M. Queen Victoria landed on her visit to Scotland on the 1st of September, 1842. The Caledonian Railway Company has also a station at Granton, and a branch line, for goods only, running to the harbour. The population of Granton village in 1891 was 915, and of the quoad sacra parish 2,389.

GORGIE is a village in the parish of St. Cuthbert, lying to the south-west of Edinburgh, on the road to Ratho, and has a station on the Suburban and Southside branch of the North British railway. The population in 1891 was 807.

MURRAYFIELD is a western suburb of the city, situated where the road to Corstorphine crosses the Water of Leith, having a station on the Leith and Cramond Brig branches of the Caledonian railway.

NEWHAVEN, a fishing village and harbour and a quoad sacra parish erected from that of North Leith, lies about a mile west from Leith Fort, with a station on the Leith branch of the Caledonian railway.

TRINITY, a district between Newhaven and Granton, is a residential marine suburb of Edinburgh on the Forth, having a chain pier at which steamboats call, and a station on the North British railway.

STOCKBRIDGE is a district in the north-east of Edinburgh.
